$5,000 FUND STARTS PORT DEVELOPMENT

Council OK's Appropriation Opening Long-Range Airport Improvement Program.

CRAFTON DIRECTS PROJECT

Service Director In Charge of Spending Money: Port Manager Grateful.

Regardless of the outcome of a $400,000 request made last week for federal aid in improving Mansfield's municipal airport, the city appeared to be started today on a long-range program to develop the air field.

City council last night appropriated $5,000 for maintenance of the airport during 1942 and designated Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton as the authority on all matters relating to it.

Crafton, by virtue of his office as service-safety director, is also director of the airport. However Crafton said that in carrying out the improvement program he would follow suggestions from James R. (Bud) Harrington, port manager who requested the appropriation.

Harrington was pleased by council's action. He termed approval of the measure "foresight and vision" on the part of council members.

"This is the first real recognition that the city has given its airport. I'm sure that council feels that aviation in Mansfield is here to stay and that development of the field will protect the city's industrial future."

The $5,000 will be used to carry out several projects suggested by Harrington, Crafton said. The legislation empowers Crafton to use $1,300 to level out bad spots on the field, another $1,000 for seeding runways, and the remainder of the $5,000 to widen and lengthen the runways, to repair the drains, mark the field and to repair and surface taxi strips and plane parking areas.

Councilman Russell D. Porch called attention to the launching of a specific improvement program.

"The airport is a municipal utility," said Porch, "and the service director is its general manager. He is being given full control of the airport and will carry out the program. We've done a lot of talking about the airport before but never did anything about it.

"If any grants are received," he continued, "it will not interfere with this work we are authorizing. These are merely preliminary improvements, preliminary to any future work such as the construction of hard-surface runways. The airport is a very vital thing to Mansfield and will be even more vital after the war."

Councilman George C. Kyle asked that the service director communicate with the state in an effort to get aid from the Ohio State Reformatory in the way of inmate labor to improve the air field.

Crafton said he is gathering data to make a request of the Defense Public Works division of the Federal Works agency for $400,000 to build hard-surface runways and other improvements needed at the airport.

Be Careful What Questions You Ask--It Might Easily Be Jap Propaganda Query That Makes Them Happy

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

NEW YORK—If you ask "Where is the U. S. navy?"—you are repeating Japanese propaganda, a question they picked up in America and want you to keep on asking.

If you ask whether Knox, Stimson or Roosevelt may have made some slips—again it is Japanese propaganda.

It makes no difference, either, that your question is sincere and original or, if a repeated phrase, that its source is proper—it is still part of Japanese propaganda.

For it is one of many the Tokyo short-wave radio is suggesting to Americans every day.

Often the questions are selected from ideas spontaneous among Americans. The Japanese choices just at present concentrate on those which might, Tokyo hopes, spread doubt, distrust and dissension.

This does not mean that honest opinion should be barred, but that it is well for Americans to realize the nature of enemy propaganda. There are about 9,000,000 American radio sets equipped for short wave listening. How many tune in is not known, but the number is probably small.

The number, however, is not so important. Agents and sympathizers can listen, take the cues, spread them as catch phrases. Careless patriots make assists.

Wavell Reveals Allies Rushing Reinforcements

British Guns Rain Shells on Japanese Across Johore Strait; Enemy Bombers Blast at Island Fortress Under Siege.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Allied generalissimo, announced today that the United States and Britain were sending "great reinforcements" to the far Pacific battle theater, while in the five-day-old siege of Singapore, British gunners rained shells into Japanese troops massed across the mile-wide Johore strait.

"Our part is to gain time for great reinforcements which we and our American allies are sending to the eastern theater," Gen. Wavell said, in a special order of the day.

"We are in a similar position to the original (1914) British expeditionary force which stopped the Germans and saved Europe in the first battle of Ypres."

Gen. Wavell's heartening message was the second official word in 24 hours that mighty counter-blows against Japan are soon to be struck by the United Nations.

Australia's Army Minister Francis M. Forde announced yesterday, without elaboration, that "a big Allied movement" is under way.

Gen. Wavell, hero of the first British offensive in North Africa and one of the world's shrewdest military strategists, also declared that the Japanese "have now reached an area where we cannot be constantly out-flanked and where the enemy cannot exploit superior mobility."

Japanese bombers blasted anew at the beleaguered Singapore defenders, inflicting some damage but few military casualties, British headquarters reported.

Embers still smouldered in the wreckage from yesterday's aerial assaults, in which the toll was listed officially as 22 killed and 90 wounded. By nightfall all but two fires were reported under control.

Today's communique tersely reported that there was "no change" in the five-day-old siege as reinforced British, Australian and imperial Indian troops worked steadily to install and camouflage new machine-gun nests, rifle pits and gun emplacements in the tangled mangrove swamps facing the enemy.

On other fronts in the far Pacific conflict:

Dutch East Indies—Dutch and Japanese troops were locked in heavy fighting on Amboina island, site of the Indies' second biggest naval base, 635 miles north of Australia, an N. E. I. communique reported.

A German broadcast, quoting the Tokyo radio, asserted that Japanese troops had completed occupation of Amboina.

British North Borneo—Berlin quoted imperial Tokyo headquarters as saying Japanese forces captured the Celebes sea port of Tawao, on the southeast coast of British Borneo.

Burma—A Tokyo broadcast said Japanese bombers, attacking by moonlight, raided an airport at Rangoon and twice heavily bombed an airfield at Toungoo,

CITY TO LOSE OUT ON WATER INSURANCE PLAN

Mayor Told Purchase Illegal; It'll Cost $1,925 More Now To Get Same Policy.

Although Mayor William J. Locke an insurance man himself, thought that the $1,525 insurance policy the city purchased to protect its waterworks system would pay $330 for the failure of some pumping equipment two weeks ago, he learned last night that the insurance had not been purchased legally and that the claim cannot be paid.

The mayor learned also that the same insurance, if purchased now, will cost the city $3,450 or $1,925 more than if it had been legally purchased at the first of the year. The insurance rates have increased since then, it was explained.

The insurance applies to breakdowns on the pumping equipment at city water wells.

The mayor got his information from City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner prior to a city council meeting at which an ordinance was to be presented to straighten out the insurance tangle.

Wagner said he told Locke that the purchase of the insurance policy from the Hollbaugh-Wolfe company, of which Earl A. McFarland, former Mansfield mayor, is an official, had been illegal and that no claims could be paid from it.

The whole question was brought up when City Auditor Paul L. Kelley withheld payment of the premium on the policy because he said he didn't know if he could legally pay it.

Kelley said that the purchase

NAVY REVEALS 1,292 MISSING IN PACIFIC WAR

Many Believed Prisoners of Foe as Result of Action In Oriental Areas.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A navy spokesman told the senate naval affairs committee today that 1,292 officers and men of the navy and marine corps are missing or prisoners of the enemy as a result of American war action in the Pacific.

This was the first official disclosure of casualties since Secretary of Navy Frank Knox announced after the attack on Pearl Harbor that 2729 enlisted and officers had been killed and 656 wounded.

The new disclosure was made during open hearings on a house-approved bill to permit the continuance of allotments to dependents of Americans captured by the enemy. The spokesman, an officer of the bureau of navigation, gave the following figures on American losses:

56 naval officers "supposed to be prisoners of war."

5 officers missing and whose status is unknown.

30 enlisted men missing.

75 enlisted men probably prisoners.

300 enlisted men "suspected" to be prisoners.

A marine officer supplemented the statement with the following figures for the marine corps:

44 officers and 716 enlisted men "in the hands of the enemy."

One officer and 65 enlisted men missing.

"The next of kin have been notified in each case," the navy officer said.

CAMPAIGN RIBS CONGRESSMEN

'Bundles' Drive Nets Old Toupees on Heels of Retirement Plan.

Started in the spirit of fun, the "Bundles for Congress" campaign was gathering momentum today like a roller coaster on the downhill grade.

It started in Spokane, where the Athletic Round Table club decided to rib congressmen who had recently enacted a retirement pay plan for themselves.

Other "Bundles for Congress" clubs were springing up over the country like wildfire, adopting the slogan "Keep 'em Laughing," and showering the congressmen with all kinds of strange gifts.

Sally Rand was one of the donors. She forwarded to the Spokane club her "last stitch," a flimsy unmentionable. Other donors sent such things as toupees, arch-supporters, false

Start Re-Check of Men Deferred By Dependency

Richland Boards, Running Short of 1-A Draftees, Get Ready to Certify Others; Pay for Dependents.

Two of the three Richland county draft boards today had started re-checking men who were deferred because of dependents as congress considered an "allowance and allotment plan" which would set up monthly payments for dependents to make thousands more men available for army duty.

While board clerks here considered the Richland county situation better than in some sections of the state, all three boards are nearing the end of their reserves of 1-A men and must look to other sources for additional selections.

Boards 1 and 2 in Mansfield are starting back over their lists of 3-A men with dependents. Board 3 is expected to start a re-check soon. In cases where the registrants' dependents may find other means of support, the men will be called for interviews and may be re-classified.

It was indicated in Washington that men with families will be the last to be called for the army. Boards will be concerned chiefly with "borderline cases" for the present and registrants who were deferred because of slight defects or because of the nature of their work.

"Borderline cases" were defined by draft officials as men with

RELAX CURFEW

Army Officials Ease Up on Rules In Honolulu.

HONOLULU (INS)—Beginning today, Honolulu's 6 p. m. curfew was extended to 8 p. m., in the first relaxation of martial law since the Dec. 7 attack on Pearl Harbor.

Blackout regulations continue in force. Automobiles cannot be used after 6 p. m., except on official urgent business, and cigaret smoking on the street and careless use of flashlights are forbidden.

The new "wartime" will be placed in effect at 2 a. m. Feb. 9 when clocks are advanced one hour. New blackout hours, 7:30 p. m. to 7 a. m., will then be placed in force.

YOUTH CRUSHED

Millersburg Mine Employe, 18, Dies After Accident.

MILLERSBURG—John Wilmer Davenport, 18-year-old mine employe, died in Pomerene hospital here last night from injuries suffered four hours earlier when his foot became caught in a coal crusher and he was drawn into the machine.

His leg was badly mangled, and death was due to shock. The machine was used to crush coal to stoker size.

A graduate of Nashville high school, the youth is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bernice Bird Davenport and a brother Delbert, of near Welcome, and his father, Arthur, of Killbuck.

The body will be taken to the home, eight miles west of Millersburg, on Thursday, and will be returned to the Elliott Funeral home for services at 2:30 p. m. Friday. Rev. Ray M. Wolford of Cleveland will officiate.

FARMERS VOTE

Referendum Set For May 2 on Wheat Marketing Quota.

Richland county farmers and others throughout the farm belt will have another chance to express themselves on the wheat marketing quota question May 2 at a nation-wide referendum, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard announced today.

Although Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, said today he had received no information concerning the referendum procedure, it is expected that farmers who grow more than a specified number of acres of grain will vote at booths set up in their communities.

Two-thirds of the farmers in the wheat-growing area must approve the quotas before they will become operative. At the first referendum last May Ohio farmers turned down the quotas, but they received an 81 percent approval vote in the nation.

THIRST BREWS

Chicagoans Can't Get Delivery Of Beer on Wednesdays.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Things were brewing in the brewing business in Chicago today. Conservation of tires may lead to a conservation of thirst. At least one day a week.

Because, beginning today, there will be no beer deliveries on Wednesdays. The decision was made by the Chicago Brewers and Beer distributors.

Consumers Will Get Stamps for Ration of Sugar

WASHINGTON—(U P)—Special stamps, each good for one week's allotment, will be used in rationing sugar to consumers, the office of price administrator said today.

The stamps will be issued by local rationing boards, probably in book form. A book of stamps will cover at least a three-month period. There will be a separate book for each individual user of sugar. Thus, a family of three would receive three books.

While the exact amount of sugar which will be allowed each individual has not been settled as yet, OPA Administrator Leon Henderson said last month that it

PRIORITIES HIT OHIO REVENUE

Sales Tax On Autos Cut In Half, Treasurer Reports.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—War priorities have slashed Ohio's sales tax revenues on automobiles in half and made heavy inroads on levies against other items, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright declared today in a report for the first 24 days of January.

Revenues this year totaled only $233,470 compared with $522,088 in the corresponding period a year ago.

However, wearing apparel revenues were $92,962 compared with $57,101 for men and $81,443 compared with $60,533 for women's clothing.

MAIL SALVAGED

Letters Taken From Warship At Pearl Harbor.

HONOLULU—(U P)—Dozens of wet, mud-streaked letters and Christmas cards were heaped on the postoffice inspector's desk today.

They had been salvaged from a warship in Pearl Harbor. The water had left fantastic markings and patterns on them. Many were written in the last hours of sailors who were killed in the Japanese sneak attack last Dec. 7. They will be put in the mails for delivery.

REPULSE: Luzon Army Breaks Attack; Two Enemy Ships Sunk

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A local attack on General Douglas MacArthur's left flank on Bataan peninsula the night of Feb. 3 was sharply repulsed, the war department announced today.

A communique also said that a delayed report from the Netherlands Indies disclosed that seven American army bombers sank two Japanese transports and probably a third in an attack on enemy shipping at Balik Papan on the east coast of Borneo on Feb. 2. The department said this attack was believed to be the same mentioned in a communique issued yesterday by General Sir Archibald Wavell at Batavia.

The communique, the 91st of the war, said "our troops continued to mop up tattered remnants of the Japanese who had previously landed on the west coast and . . . infiltrated behind our lines." These were so-called shock troops and were found in isolated pockets, it added.

Attempts to supply these troops with food dropped from airplanes failed, the communique said, most of the supplies falling into the hands of MacArthur's men.

The capital looked, meanwhile, to American air and sea forces to take an increasingly

APPROACH: Reds Drive Close To Smolensk; Derna Abandoned

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U P)—Col. Gen. Erwin Rommel's sweeping 325-mile Axis counter-offensive across Libya drove the British out of the port of Derna today and stretched the North African front in an "extraordinary" fluid line from a point southeast of Bengasi to within 100 miles of Tobruk.

(By Associated Press)

Soviet front-line dispatches reported heavy battles were raging today near several key towns in the Smolensk sector, 230 miles west of Moscow, with the Germans falling back under the assault of a powerful Russian counter-offensive.

Smolensk is the main anchor of Adolf Hitler's winter defense line on the central front.

While none of the "key towns" was specified, the Russians have been driving close upon Yelnya, only 35 miles southeast of Smolensk, in a thrust to cut off the escape of German armies retreating along the old Napoleonic road from Moscow.

Fierce fighting also was reported on the Leningrad front, where a British broadcast said the Germans had been thrown back 18 miles south of the one-time czarist capital by heavy Russian attacks.

A Red army bulletin said Russian troops attacking in the Leningrad sector had destroyed 16 Nazi blockhouses, killed nearly 800 German troops and captured vast quantities of equipment.

Soviet troops were reported sharply threatening Dnieperopetrovsk, site of a $100,000,000 hydro-electric power dam which the Russians destroyed before it fell into German hands last year.

On the North African front, the sweep of Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel's Axis forces encroached upon Derna, only 95 miles west of Tobruk, after driving the British 160 miles northeast of Bengasi.

British military quarters in London acknowledged that Derna had been abandoned after imperial Indian rearguards "completed their

Merle Pecht, president of the association, said in connection with the event:

"Mansfield retailers will continue their efforts for the expansion of the trading territory and will maintain their policy of offering quality merchandise at the lowest prices possible."

Free bus rides to the downtown area will be offered from 9 a. m., to 11:15 a. m. The usual fare will be charged for the return trip.

Participating firms will display the yellow and black R. M. A., flags and the Bargain Days pennants on the two days. The Thursday edition of The Mansfield News-Journal will carry the advertisements of the participating merchants.

Congressmen Rap Douglas as 'Pink' Unsuited for War Job

WASHINGTON—Congressional attacks upon the appointment of Melvyn Douglas, movie star, as director of the arts council of the Office of Civilian Defense continued today as Rep. Leland Ford (R) Cal., asserted that the OCD "is assuming the aspect of a pink tea party, with emphasis on the pink."

Another barrage was fired at Douglas by Rep. Keefe (R) Wis., who said that he has a report from the Dies committee on any radical tendencies Douglas might have and that he would present the house with "documentary evidence" this afternoon.

Criticism of Douglas' appointment to the OCD was launched on the floor of the house by Ford who charged that "he is a former Communist and his name is not Douglas, it is Melvyn Hesselberg." He added that Douglas, "is well known to have all the pink affiliations."

The California congressman who said that he "will not even consider apologizing," continued his

MARKET BALKS ON WAR NEWS AT SINGAPORE

Lima Locomotive Hits New High as Rails Pace Slight Climb.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Small buying had a shade the best of it in today's stock market although numerous leaders continued in the wavering division.

Among early favorites Lima Locomotive edged into new high ground for 1941-42. Supported were Union Pacific, N. Y. Central, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Chrysler, General Electric and Johns-Manville.

The critical position of Singapore, more than anything else, brokers said, was a restraining influence for share bidders. Scant stimulation was discerned in the domestic picture although business developements were fairly encouraging.

Market students saw further confirmation of the country's economic drive in the federal reserve compilation disclosing commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of member banks in 101 cities climbed $57,000,000 in the week ended Jan. 28. The total of $6,778,000,000 exceeded the comparable week a year ago by $1,702,000,000.

AIRPORT PLAN BEFORE COUNCIL

Appropriation of $5,000 For Improvements Will Be Studied Tonight.

said that legislation for the appropriation had been prepared and would be considered at tonight's meeting.

Councilman George C. Kyle said that all councilmen he had talked with on the airport matter had indicated they would support the ordinance. Kyle suggested that an application be made to the state so that inmates of the Ohio State Reformatory could be used to help haul sludge from the city's sewage disposal plant to help condition the airport for the growth of grass seed.

"I can't see why there should be any opposition to such a plan," said Kyle, "and I intend to confer with other councilmen on such a program."

The state allowed inmates of the reformatory to aid the city several years ago when drainage tiles were laid and grading work was being done at the airport.

If council approves the appropriation, Crafton will be in charge of the improvements at the port. Harrington will obtain money from the fund for the improvements through the service director.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

$5,000 FUND STARTS PORT DEVELOPMENT

Council OK's Appropriation Opening Long-Range Airport Improvement Program.

CRAFTON DIRECTS PROJECT

Service Director In Charge of Spending Money; Port Manager Grateful.

Regardless of the outcome of a $400,000 request made last week for federal aid in improving Mansfield's municipal airport, the city appeared to be started today on a long-range program to develop the air field.

City council last night appropriated $5 000 for maintenance of the airport during 1942 and designated Service-Safety Director C M. Crafton as the authority on all matters relating to it.

Crafton, by virtue of his office as service-safety director, is also director of the airport. However, Crafton said that in carrying out the improvement program he would follow suggestions from James R (Bud) Harrington port manager who requested the appropriation

Harrington was pleased by council's action. He termed approval of the measure "foresight and vision" on the part of council members.

"This is the first real recognition that the city has given its airport. I'm sure that council feels that aviation in Mansfield is here to stay and that development of the field will protect the city's industrial future."

The $5,000 will be used to carry out several projects suggested by Harrington, Crafton said The legislation empowers Crafton to use $1,300 to level out bad spots on the field, another $1,000 for seeding runways, and the remainder of the $5 000 to widen and lengthen the runways to repair the drains, mark the field and to repair and surface taxi strips and plane parking areas

Councilman Russrell D Porch called attention to the launching of a specific improvement program

"The airport is a municipal utility," said Porch, "and the service director is its general manager. He is being given full control of the airport and will carry out the program. We've done a lot of talking about the airport before but never did anything about it.

"If any grants are received," he continued, "it will not interfere with this work we are authorizing. These are merely preliminary improvements preliminary to any future work such as the construction of hard-surface runways. The airport is a very vital thing to Mansfield and will be even more vital after the war."

Councilman George C. Kyle asked that the service director communicate with the state in an effort to get aid from the Ohio State Reformatory in the way of inmate labor to improve the air field.

Crafton said he is gathering data to make a request of the Defense Public Works division of the Federal Works agency for $400,000 to build hard-surface runways and other improvements needed at the airport

Be Careful What Questions You Ask--It Might Easily Be Jap Propaganda Query That Makes Them Happy

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

NEW YORK—If you ask "Where is the U. S. navy?"—you are repeating Japanese propaganda, a question they picked up in America and want you to keep on asking.

If you ask whether Knox, Stimson or Roosevelt may have made some slips—again it is Japanese propaganda.

It makes no difference, either, that your question is sincere and original or, if a repeated phrase, that its source is proper—it is still part of Japanese propaganda.

For it is one of many the Tokyo short-wave radio is suggesting to Americans every day.

Often the questions are selected from ideas spontaneous among Americans. The Japanese choices just at present concentrate on those which might, Tokyo hopes, spread doubt, distrust and dissension.

This does not mean that honest opinion should be barred, but that it is well for Americans to realize the nature of enemy propaganda. There are about 9,000,000 American radio sets equipped for short wave listening. How many tune in is not known, but the number is probably small.

The number, however, is not so important. Agents and sympathizers can listen, take the cues, spread them as catch phrases. Careless patriots make assists.

CITY TO LOSE OUT ON WATER INSURANCE PLAN

Mayor Told Purchase Illegal; It'll Cost $1,925 More Now To Get Same Policy.

Although Mayor William J Locke an insurance man himself, thought that the $1,525 insurance policy the city purchased to protect its waterworks system would pay $330 for the failure of some pumping equipment two weeks ago, he learned last night that the insurance had not been purchased legally and that the claim cannot be paid

The mayor learned also that the same insurance, if purchased now, will cost the city $3,450 or $1,925 more than if it had been legally purchased at the first of the year. The insurance rates have increased since then, it was explained.

The insurance applies to breakdowns on the pumping equipment at city water wells.

The mayor got his information from City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner prior to a city council meeting at which an ordinance was to be presented to straighten out the insurance tangle.

Wagner said he told Locke that the purchase of the insurance policy from the Holibaugh-Wolfe company, of which Earl A. McFarland, former Mansfield mayor, is an official, had been illegal and that no claims could be paid from it.

The whole question was brought up when City Auditor Paul L Kelley withheld payment of the premium on the policy because he said he didn't know if he could legally pay it.

Kelley said that the purchase

CAMPAIGN RIBS CONGRESSMEN

'Bundles' Drive Nets Old Toupees on Heels of Retirement Plan.

'Started in the spirit of fun, the "Bundles for Congress" campaign was gathering momentum today like a roller coaster on the downhill grade.

It started in Spokane, where the Athletic Round Table club decided to rib congressmen who had recently enacted a retirement pay plan for themselves.

Other "Bundles for Congress" clubs were springing up over the country like wildfire, adopting the slogan "Keep 'em Laughing," and showering the congressmen with all kinds of strange gifts

Sally Rand was one of the donors. She forwarded to the Spokane club her "last stitch," a flimsy unmentionable. Other donors sent such things as toupees, arch-supporters, false

Start Re-Check of Men Deferred By Dependency

Richland Boards, Running Short of 1-A Draftees, Get Ready to Certify Others; Pay for Dependents.

Two of the three Richland county draft boards today had started re-checking men who were deferred because of dependents as congress considered an "allowance and allotment plan' which would set up monthly payments for dependents to make thousands more men available for army duty.

While board clerks here considered the Richland county situation better than in some sections of the state, all three boards are nearing the end of their reserves of 1-A men and must look to other sources for additional selections.

Boards 1 and 2 in Mansfield are starting back over their lists of 3-A men with dependents. Board 3 is expected to start a re-check soon. In cases where the registrants' dependents may find other means of support, the men will be called for interviews and may be re-classified.

It was indicated in Washington that men with families will be the last to be called for the army. Boards will be concerned chiefly with "borderline cases" for the present and registrants who were deferred because of slight defects or because of the nature of their work

"Borderline cases" were defined by draft officials as men with

Referendum Set For May 2 on Wheat Marketing Quota.

Richland county farmers and others throughout the farm belt will have another chance to express themselves on the wheat marketing quota question May 2 at a nation-wide referendum, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard announced today.

Although Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, said today he had received no information concerning the referendum procedure, it is expected that farmers who grow more than a specified number of acres of grain will vote at booths set up in their communities.

Two-thirds of the farmers in the wheat-growing area must approve the quotas before they will become operative At the first referendum last May Ohio farmers turned down the quotas, but they received an 81 percent approval vote in the nation.

Congressmen Rap Douglas as 'Pink' Unsuited for War Job

WASHINGTON — Congressional attacks upon the appointment of Melvyn Douglas, movie star, as director of the arts council of the Office of Civilian Defense continued today as Rep Leland Ford (R) Cal., asserted that the OCD "is assuming the aspect of a pink tea party, with emphasis on the pink."

Another barrage was fired at Douglas by Rep. Keefe (R) Wis., who said that he has a report from the Dies committee on any radical tendencies Douglas might have and that he would present the house with "documentary evidence" this afternoon.

Criticism of Douglas' appointment to the OCD was launched on the floor of the house by Ford who charged that "he is a former Communist and his name is not Douglas, it is Melvyn Hesselberg." He added that Douglas, "is well known to have all the pink affiliations."

The California congressman who said that he "will not even consider apologizing," continued his

NAVY REVEALS 1,292 MISSING IN PACIFIC WAR

Many Believed Prisoners of Foe as Result of Action In Oriental Areas.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A navy spokesman told the senate naval affairs committee today that 1 292 officers and men of the navy and marine corps are missing or prisoners of the enemy as a result of American war action in the Pacific

This was the first official disclosure of casualties since Secretary of Navy Frank Knox announced after the attack on Pearl Harbor that 2 729 enlisted and officers had been killed and 656 wounded

The new disclosure was made during open hearings on a house-approved bill to permit the continuance of allotments to dependents of Americans captured by the enemy. The spokesman, an officer of the bureau of navigation, gave the following figures on American losses:

56 naval officers "supposed to be prisoners of war"

5 officers missing and whose status is unknown.

30 enlisted men missing

75 enlisted men probably prisoners

300 enlisted men "suspected" to be prisoners

A marine officer supplemented the statement with the following figures for the marine corps:

44 officers and 716 enlisted men "in the hands of the enemy"

One officer and 65 enlisted men missing

"The next of kin have been notified in each case," the navy officer said.

Wavell Reveals Allies Rushing Reinforcements

British Guns Rain Shells on Japanese Across Johore Strait; Enemy Bombers Blast at Island Fortress Under Siege.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Allied generalissimo, announced today that the United States and Britain were sending "great reinforcements" to the far Pacific battle theater, while in the five-day-old siege of Singapore, British gunners rained shells into Japanese troops massed across the mile-wide Johore strait.

"Our part is to gain time for great reinforcements which we and our American allies are sending to the eastern theater," Gen. Wavell said, in a special order of the day.

"We are in a similar position to the original (1914) British expeditionary force which stopped the Germans and saved Europe in the first battle of Ypres."

Gen. Wavell's heartening message was the second official word in 24 hours that mighty counter-blows against Japan are soon to be struck by the United Nations

Australia's Army Minister Francis M Forde announced yesterday, without elaboration that "a big Allied movenient" is under way.

Gen Wavell hero of the first British offensive in North Africa and one of the world's shrewdest military strategists, also declared that the Japanese "have now reached an area where we cannot be constantly out-flanked and where the enemy cannot exploit superior mobility."

Japanese bombers blasted anew at the beleaguered Singapore defenders, inflicting some damage but few military casualties, British headquarters reported

Embers still smouldered in the wreckage from yesterday's aerial assaults, in which the toll was listed officially as 22 killed and 90 wounded. By nightfall, all but two fires were reported under control.

Today's communique tersely reported that there was "no change" in the five-day-old siege as reinforced British Australian and imperial Indian troops worked steadily to install and camouflage new machine-gun nests, rifle pits and gun emplacements in the tangled mangrove swamps facing the enemy.

On other fronts in the far Pacific conflict

Dutch East Indies—Dutch and Japanese troops were locked in heavy fighting on Amboina island, site of the Indies' second biggest naval base, 635 miles north of Australia, an N. E. I. communique reported.

A German broadcast, quoting the Tokyo radio, asserted that Japanese troops had completed occupation of Amboina.

British North Borneo—Berlin quoted imperial Tokyo headquarters as saying Japanese forces captured the Celebes sea port of Tawao, on the southeast coast of British Borneo

Burma — A Tokyo broadcast said Japanese bombers, attacking by moonlight, raided an airport at Rangoon and twice heavily bombed an airfield at Toungoo,

REPULSE: Luzon Army Breaks Attack; Two Enemy Ships Sunk

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A local attack on General Douglas MacArthur's left flank on Batan peninsula the night of Feb. 3 was sharply repulsed, the war department announced today.

A communique also said that a delayed report from the Netherlands Indies disclosed that seven Japanese transports and probably a third in an attack on enemy shipping at Balik Papan on the east coast of Borneo on Feb. 2 The department said this attack was believed to be the same mentioned in a communique issued yesterday by General Sir Archibald Wavell at Batavia

The communique, the 91st of the war, said "our troops continued to mop up tattered remnants of the Japanese who had previously landed on the west coast and . . . infiltrated behind our lines." These were so-called shock troops and were found in isolated pockets it added.

Attempts to supply these troops with food dropped from airplanes failed, the communique said, most of the supplies falling into the hands of MacArthur's men.

The capital looked, meanwhile, to American air and sea forces to take an increasingly

APPROACH: Reds Drive Close To Smolensk; Derna Abandoned

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Col. Gen. Erwin Rommel's sweeping 325-mile Axis counter-offensive across Libya drove the British out of the port of Derna today and stretched the North African front in an "extraordinary" fluid line from a point southeast of Bengasi to within 100 miles of Tobruk.

(By Associated Press)

Soviet front-line dispatches reported heavy battles were raging today near several key towns in the Smolensk sector, 230 miles west of Moscow, with the Germans falling back under the assault of a powerful Russian counter-offensive.

Smolensk is the main anchor of Adolf Hitler's winter defense line on the central front

While none of the "key towns" was specified, the Russians have been driving close upon Yelnya, only 35 miles southeast of Smolensk, in a thrust to cut off the escape of German armies retreating along the old Napoleonic road from Moscow

Fierce fighting also was reported on the Leningrad front, where a British broadcast said the Germans had been thrown back 18 miles south of the one-time czarist capital by heavy Russsian attacks.

A Red army bulletin said Russian troops attacking in the Leningrad sector had destroyed 16 Nazi blockhouses, killed nearly 800 German troops and captured vast quantities of equipment.

Soviet troops were reported sharply threatening Dnieperopetrovsk, site of a $100,000,000 hydro-electric power dam which the Russians destroyed before it fell into German hands last year.

On the North African front, the sweep of Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel's Axis forces encroached upon Derna, only 95 miles west of Tobruk, after driving the British 160 miles northeast of Bengasi.

British military quarters in London acknowledged that Derna had been abandoned after imperial Indian rearguards "completed their between Rangoon and Mandaly on the Burma road to China.

Dispatches from Rangoon said American volunteer fliers smashed time and again at Japanese batteries hidden in the river islands north of enemy-occupied Moulmein, across the bay from Rangoon.

British imperials and Burmese native battalions skirmished with Japanese patrols along 40 miles of the lower Salween river front, but the Japanese thrusts so far had not taken on the power of a full-scale attack

Australia—Australian bombers scored a direct hit on a big Japanese ship in the harbor of Japanese-occupied Rabaul, New Britain.

Latest dispatches from Singapore said there was still no outward sign that the Japanese were about to launch their expected assault across Johore strait, with the invaders apparently resting and concentrating their forces.

Domei, official Japanese news agency, declared the northern part of Singapore island presented a bleak, lifeless scene, broken only by the movement of trucks creeping along the coastal hills.

Domei gave this description of the siege-bound island·

". . . Oil tanks blazing along the waterfront . . . the hulk of a three-masted British destroyer partly submerged in the Singapore naval base . . . roads around the base entirely deserted . . . five out of 26 tanks bombed by Japanese aircraft blazing unchecked, their smoke billowing over the island."

But Domei took note, too of "camouflaged concrete pillboxes with square loopholes, studded along the strait, menacing any invasion attempt. . . ."

Even the Berlin radio—for propaganda purposes undivulged—hinted that a Singapore invasion attempt might end disastrously.

"Japanese troops are facing a hard and heavy task," a German station said. "Singapore still has enough, and more than enough, defense potentialities."

United States air and sea forces were expected in Washington to take an increasingly heavy toll of Japanese expeditions now threatening Java, the heart of the Netherlands East Indies

Reds Disappointed At Allied War Work

LONDON —(U P)— Allied diplomatic informants said today that Russia was disappointed by the Allied war effort, especially United States and British war production, and was increasingly anxious over continued Allied setbacks in the Pacific.

They said Russians made no attempt to minimize the long-standing enmity between Russia and Japan and expressed belief that only war could result from it eventually.

Russia's position was, however, that Russian industry was straining to the limit to supply the needs of the present Red army offensive and to build up reserves against the prospective German spring drive and that it could not now be expected to aid the Allies by attacking Japan from Siberia and thus forming a new Pacific front

Russians have begun to wonder according to informants how far the Allies are prepared to retreat in the Far Pacific before they make a counter-offensive against Japan and it was added that there was growing bewilderment in Russia over the inadequacy of preparations to meet a Japanese attack which had been long foreseen.

heavy toll of Japanese expeditions now threatening Java, but any large scale plan to reinforce the southwestern Pacific area was yet to become evident.

Although the destination of a 69-ship Japanese convoy which the Chinese reported off Amoy was undetermined, there was little doubt here that it would be subjected to continual pounding of American ships and planes if it attempted to reach the southwestern Pacific battle zone

From Amoy, the voyage to either the Macassar strait district, from which the Japanese menace Java, or to the Malay peninsula above Singapore would take about a week.

Beyond the expectation of continued sharp defensive action against Japanese expeditions official Washington offered no information on the big movement by the Allies which Francis M Forde, the Australian army minister, said in a broadcast yesterday was under way.

The navy's announcement that "a naval battalion composed of bluejackets and marines has been organized and is fighting on Batan peninsula with Gen. MacArthur's command" was taken to refer to forces which had been left behind when the navy withdrew from the Philippines a month ago.

Clark Lee Associated Press correspondent with MacArthur's troops, was permitted to disclose that the sailors and a force of American aviators, fighting on land with rifles in the Batan jungles, checkmated a Japanese landing attempt several days ago.

After the sailors and fliers had pushed the Japanese back to the shore, Filipino scouts took over and annihilated the enemy with the aid of shells from a naval patrol vessel

In its communique the navy also told of the third successful action of a torpedo boat of the western Pacific mosquito fleet.

"A motor torpedo boat of Admiral Hart's Far Eastern command is believed to have torpedoed an enemy warship in night action inside Manila bay," the communique said. "Although under heavy fire of the warship's guns, and in the full glare of her searchlights, the motor torpedo boat managed to fire two torpedoes and survive the action without being hit" probably would be approximately 12 ounces weekly.

The sugar stamps would be issued when members of a family register with local rationing boards, which already are allotting new tires to certain specified civilian consumers such as doctors and nurses.

Stamps will be issued for a uniform amount regardless of whether an individual is a child or an adult, OPA officials said.

Under the proposed plan, a family of four including two adults and two children, could obtain three pounds weekly if the 12 ounce estimate is finally adopted.

The OPA has not yet decided who actually will issue the sugar stamps, although it appears certain that it will not be done by either local postoffices or the community retailers

OPA officials said that the delay in issuing sugar stamps, which may push the formal start of rationing over into March, was almost entirely due to the tremendous job of printing stamps and cards for the nations 132,000,000,000 citizens.

Under the present proposal, the grocer would tear out the stamps from the books carried by his customers and keep them on hand for trading in later when he replaced his sugar stocks.

partly self-supporting dependents, including wives who are working or are capable of working.

The allowance and allotment bill was introduced in congress by Rep Andrew Edmiston of West Virginia. It would require men in the service to contribute $15 a month toward the support of their "real dependents" while the government would provide up to $35 a month more, according to the number of dependents. The minimum government allotment would be $15 a month The plan is similar to that used in the first World war.

Ohio draft officials said today that thousands of veterans of the first World war will become subject to military and naval service following the third registration Feb. 14, 15, and 16. The registration will include men to 45 years old, many of whom served during the last war. Men in the 45-to-65 age group may be required to register as early as April, it was revealed.

Present plans call for the use of older men in industry to replace younger registrants who may be called into active service.

FASTERS WILL WAIT COMMAND

Prisoners Say They'll Seek Divine Guidance On Food.

DAYTON —(U.P.)— Ralph Bowser 42, and Sherman Hypes, 38, fasting prisoners in the city workhouse said today they would seek "divine guidance" if their strength failed but they were still going strong after 13 and 7 days respectively, without food

Attendants said both men were in good condition and that they would not undergo physical examination until late in the week unless something unexpected happens Neither is believed to have taken any food since the fast started Both drink several glasses of water daily.

Asked if they would break their fast when their strength failed, Hypes replied he would "listen for divine guidance," and Bowser said he "would break the commandment (not to take food) if God commanded" teeth, cast-off clothing and other articles.

But there were some members of congress—notably the author of the congressional pension bill, and some of its supporters, who didn't think the idea was so funny, although some congressmen professed to "get a laugh" out of the whole thing.

Robert Ramspeck, Democratic congressman from Georgia, who was the author of the bill, which was signed by President Roosevelt Jan. 24 didn't find the "Bundles for Congress" idea amusing.

"I've got no objection to their having all the fun they want to," Ramspeck said, "but I don't think it serves any good purpose to make sport of congress at a time when the people ought to have confidence in their government."

Senator James M Mead, Democrat, New York, who sponsored the bill in the upper house, wasn't amused, either. He asserted the BFC move was based on misconceptions of the real nature of the retirement plan, which is purely optional with congressmen.

"It is my judgment that most members won't join the retirement plan," he said. "It costs too much. I can't join because I haven't funds enough to take on another $500-a-year expense."

He referred to the five per cent of annual salary required as payment into the fund

Rep William M Whittington, (D Miss.) "enjoyed the 'bundles' yarn very much." and Sen. Robert R. Reynolds, (D N C.) "got a good laugh out of it."

No one knows what congressmen favored the bill and which ones didn't because there wasn't a record vote taken on it.

However, some senators, perhaps feeling that the idea of congressmen (both house and senate members receive $10,000 a year) voting pension plans for themselves during war times wasn't so popular, introduced repeal measures for at least sections of the bill.

And then along came Dr. Francis E Townsend, founder of the Townsend pension plan and perennial pension advocate, who today began a drive for enactment of a national pension program this year for those "who are not able to make their own laws."

The Townsend organization circularized congressmen with a publication reprinting a letter from Rep James F. O'Connor, (D. Mont) to President Roosevelt, under the headlines: "Congress passes pension law for all congressmen," the publication commented:

"The long awaited event has happened? And the president has signed the bill! So now it is a law. The congress has decided to include its own members in a generous pension program There is nothing wrong in that in itself. Dr Townsend was one of the first to advocate it, but he wanted it only a part of a general, fair and honorable retirement program for all of our senior citizens."

Sen. Harry F Byrd, (D. Va.) introduced a bill yesterday to repeal that provision which permits congressmen to assume the benefits of the civil service retirement system by notifying the disbursing official and paying five per cent on their salaries into the fund until they are eligible to retire. Byrd acted on behalf of himself and Sens. Edwin C Johnson, (D. Colo.), Harold H Burton, (D O.) and Josiah W. Bailey, (D N C.)

CITY TO LOSE ON INSURANCE

cost was more than $500, the limit allowed by law without calling for competitive bids.. The mayor asked Wagner to prepare an ordinance in which council would authorize the purchase but Wagner ruled that council action would not correct the error.

The city solicitor said that the only solution he could see would be to have council authorize the purchase of insurance, advertise for competitive bids and to award the contract for the insurance to the low bidder

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said last night that he hoped some arrangement could be worked out whereby the insurance policy is retained but said that he had not investigated the matter as yet.

The $330 which the city thought it was going to get was to come for the 33-hour breakdown of one of the city's pumps at the Maxwell Springs pumping station two weeks ago. The insurance company, under the terms of the policy, repaired the damage, and was to pay $10 for each of the hours the pump was out of commission.

Crafton said that some adjustment would also have to be made for the repair work done by the insurance company.

Meanwhile, the city is out the expected $330, may have to pay for the repairs to the pump, and if it renews the insurance policy on a legal basis,, may pay an additional $1,925 for it.

CONGRESSMEN RAP DOUGLAS

Brand Actor as 'Pink' In Attack on Appointment To Defense Post.

criticism of Douglas and the OCD, by declaring that "more could be accomplished by the office (OCD) if there were more work and less dancing."

"They believe in all play and no work over there," he continued. "Sometime we might really need the OCD and they will find that they can't play when the bombs are falling."

Dean James M. Landis, who named Douglas to his post which will be a co-ordinated clearing house" for movie, stage and dancing talent serving various federal defense agencies said that he has "complete confidence" in the actor despite the attacks in congress.

Asked about charges that Douglas was a "pink," Landis said: "I have no comment. I don't know what a parlor pink is. I have complete confidence in him."

Douglas himself had this to say:

"Rep Ford shot off his mouth once before. It—may interest Mr. Ford to know that many of those who previously attacked me have since apologized rather profoundly. A congressman has the right to talk. I don't so regard myself as one."

Meanwhile Landis announced that the OCD has been segregated into six new divisions. In addition to the one to be headed by Douglas and others and their directors are:

Civil air patrol, Gen. John Curry; civilian protection, Gen. L. B. Gasser; administrative service, no director named; community and volunteer participation, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; and a general interdepartmental council which Landis himself will direct.

Assisting Mrs Roosevelt in her division will be Jonathan W Daniels, North Carolina editor, who will direct program planning; Hugh Johnson, associate secretary of New York State Charities association, operations director and Miss Mary Dublin, associated with the house committee investigating defense migration will be survey director.

IF YOU'RE ARRESTED IN CITY, 14 TO 1 YOU'LL BE CONVICTED

If you should happen to be arrested for a felony in Mansfield, the chances are 14 to one that you'll be found guilty of it. That is—if you follow the average of 1941.

Marion D. Ward, jr., former city solicitor, in his annual report submitted to city council last night, stated that only 18 persons out of the 233 arraigned in Mansfield municipal court during the past year were acquitted of the charges.

Of course, some were released through dismissals of cases, but 57 pleaded guilty. Ward reported that 113 persons pleading innocent were found guilty by the court. Forty-five cases were dismissed for lack of evidence or from withdrawal of the charges with the solicitor's consent.

Ward said that he took part in 500 court sessions, issued 820 affidavits for the prosecution of crimes by the city and 780 for state offenses.

In addition to court activity, the solicitor said he had attended 19 city council meetings, had drawn up 259 ordinances and resolutions and had delivered on the average of two oral opinions in civil cases each day.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1942.

Some folks are avoiding too abrupt a change by setting the clock ten minutes ahead each day this week.

Embarrassing as it must be, just after voting themselves pensions, congressmen are now looking around for more things to tax.

Clarence Budington Kelland promises that his political activities will not interfere with his production of fiction—and, come to think of it, there is a similarity.

Profiteering Will Bring Inflation

WAR PROFITEERING is quite generally taken to mean the piling up of huge profits on war contracts by unscrupulous big operators—but the field of war profiteering is much broader than that.

Small concerns that take advantage of a war situation to reap more than normal profits; farmers who seek skyrocketed prices for their products and workers who demand big increases in wages because of the war emergency—all of these either knowingly or unknowingly share in responsibility for driving the nation toward dangerous inflation.

The CIO council's demand upon congress for a tax program "which will stop war profiteering and the creation of war millionaires" is worthy of full support, but it becomes less impressive when associated with an urge to all affiliated unions to "demand substantial wage increases."

As the United States government moves further into purchase of war materials, and as a large percentage of industrial production is changed over to military equipment and supplies, "substantial wage increases" will add billions of dollars in costs to taxpayers.

Restrictions in output of consumer goods will eventually mean, if the war continues long, that few things will be available except food, clothing and fuel, and these can be driven to extremely high costs by failure to control wages and farm prices.

Inequities in wage standards, as associated with living costs, are always properly subject to correction, but the sacrifices which everybody is asked to make, as a patriotic duty, should apply equally, rather than that a favored few be permitted to gain for themselves—either in profits, prices or wages.

Douglas Appointment Under Fire

APPOINTMENT of Melvyn Douglas, stage and screen actor, as director of the arts council in the office of civilian defense, appears to be another of those personally influenced selections which were common to early years of the Roosevelt administration, when Frances Perkins was named as secretary of labor, Harry Hopkins as WPA administrator, Charley West for White House liaison with congress, and the like.

The fact that Douglas is named to an important post in the civilian defense office where Mrs. Roosevelt has been assistant to Director LaGuardia, ties in with a charge made by Congressman Leland Ford, of California, that "too many persons whose past activities have been questioned have been appointed to high places." First announcement was that Douglas would head the civilian defense information division, but this was later denied by James M. Landis, OCD executive officer.

In any event, Ford's assertion that Douglas is a former Communist, "and is now known to have pink affiliations" should be fully investigated and the facts made known—as it is unfair to Douglas, if the charges are untrue, that the public should have such an impression of him.

An incident that lends color to the charge, however, is that Mrs. Roosevelt quite recently intervened personally in an effort to obtain a commission in the naval intelligence for Joseph P. Lash. As many will recall, Lash was formerly executive secretary of the American Student Union, an organization that, under Communist guidance, announced that it would not support any war in which the United States became engaged.

Lash was turned down by the navy department, as not being the kind of man wanted for such confidential service—and there is an inclination to trust the naval authorities in such matters, rather than the judgment of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Another comment by Congressman Ford on the Douglas appointment is worthy of thought: "Instead of having a thorough housecleaning of these incompetent parasites, the program seems to be to obtain the most unqualified and the most incompetent, who always have tied up with interests which would destroy the American form of government. If hundreds of thousands of men are lost before this war is won, it can be chargeable to the incompetent political setup right here in Washington."

Experiment In 'Primitive Hardships'

A CITY MAN who, in a spirit of adventure and research, laid up his car for a week and resorted to the primitive devices of walking and riding in street cars, reports substantially as follows.

He saved money and lost time—it took him twice as long to get around.

He met some old friends that he hadn't seen for years.

He saw much more of what was going on around town.

He shopped more in his own neighborhood.

He found that carrying packages home was troublesome.

He got acquainted with the neighborhood movie house.

Occasionally he weakened and took a taxicab.

He didn't have so much time to play with the children and do odd jobs around the house, and wondered how he'd get the gardening done.

At the end of the week he eagerly went back to driving the car.

Fanaticism Isn't Patriotism

THE Boston Museum of Fine Arts has had to close its Japanese gallery for the duration of the war. "Fanatics are abroad," says Director Edgell, "and are as likely to slash a Japanese print as to cut down a Japanese cherry tree."

It is a penalty of being a large country. Every land has cranks; one as large as this must have a fair number.

Crowding a four-year college course into two years will add to the difficulty of finding seasoned football players.

It might help to have auto horns designed to give out only 100 honks—with substantial charge for refills.

Scrap iron from the United States is now being delivered to the Japanese in a much more justifiable way.

Sugar Surplus Caused Shortage

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—It is possible, though one must not depend on it, that the sugar rationing will not continue throughout the duration of the war. For a considerable time we will be very short, due to various mistakes, most not ble of which was not holding down the Philippine duty free imports to the figure their own people said in 1929 they could not exceed. This was 400,000 tons. They had been sending us one million tons a year up to the attack on Pearl Harbor.

This was an unnatural situation. Actually the only reason the Philippines had turned so heavily to sugar was that they had what amounted to a non-competitive market in the United States. They were inside our tariff wall, and therefore did not have to meet the competition of Java, which can produce sugar more cheaply than the Philippines.

Not only that, but they were guaranteed the sale of their sugar in our market by the quota system which our department of agriculture set up, over violent protests from the Louisiana and Florida cane producers, the beet producers in twenty states, and the Puerto Rican and the Cubans.

SO NOW we are faced with the loss of this million tons which, under the rationing system, had become virtually a substantial part of our sugar rations. This is more than TWENTY MILLION POUNDS of sugar a year. In addition, however, one-third of the Cuban crop must be used for the making of alcohol, vital to the manufacture of explosives and for other war purposes.

Curious in this connection is the fact that department of agriculture officials virtually had been at their wits' end to hold down sugar production. Beet culture had spread, from fifteen states where it flourished about the time the quota system was inaugurated, to twenty states. So beet acreage was curtailed to an average extent of 17 per cent as late as 1941. Cane acreage was cut 10 per cent. This followed a previous cut of 25 per cent which involved the plowing up of growing sugar cane!

Constant warnings that a sugar shortage easily could develop were ignored. Congressmen from the sugar states feel that this was particularly inexcusable in view of what happened during the World war when consumers in the United States were called on to pay exorbitant prices while foreign sugar was not available in sufficient quantity to supply the demand.

If one studies the situation with hindsight it becomes obvious that the cries of the sugar states politicians ought to have been heeded the moment this country began lend-lease operations, long before it was admitted that we were drifting into the war. For the need for more and more industrial alcohol was evident.

FORTUNATELY most of the cane farmers in Louisiana took a chance last September. They risked their benefit checks from the department of agriculture by planting some 25 per cent more than their quota! Housewives should bless them for this next year because increase will show up importantly in November, when the crop is harvested.

Meanwhile Cuba is increasing her production also, but no one can predict what may be the result of the war requirements for alcohol. Fortunately alcohol can be produced from any grain, and corn is the most logical.

Listen World!

Learn to Be Alone

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE TROUBLE with most of us moderns is that we never learn how to be alone.

From the moment of birth we're surrounded with clutter and clash and clang. There's always someone to talk to, something to see, some place to go. We're never still—never really cast upon our own resources. We never "repose within ourselves." Nor face and find ourselves in solitude.

Indeed, the very thought of being alone gives most of us the Screaming Meamies. We may for one night endure the Exereme Agony of staying at home with Nothing To Do. But human fortitude can go no further. With the next evening star, off we dash to the movies, the night club or the bridge game.

Even when we race about in our cars, the horror of solitude still grips us. Give us a radio, or give us death!

Now, I've nothing against radios. Indeed, I am very much for them, and have installed them myself in various parts of my home, including my car. Properly used, a radio is probably the most broadening instrument the Machine Age has invented, and there should be one in every home. But I am very much against our hysterical need of constant noise and diversion as a means of escape from solitude.

Solitude is not a blight nor a nightmare. It is a normal and necessary part of our human experience, and no character can become lusty or poised without large amounts of it. We need solitude as much as we need sleep or food or fresh air. We need it to discover and develop the truth about ourselves—to sift out the values of Life—to hear those Voices which can only come to us in the quiet.

Once solitude was an accepted, an inescapable part of all human experience. People learned to live alone because they had to. There were no movies to flee to—no telephones or radios—no swift transportation by automobiles. People learned to "stay put" in both soul and body, and were the stronger and saner for it.

We are not smarter or stronger for all our racket and racing, we moderns. We do not know about Life, for we spend our days running away from Life. We have far less within ourselves than the lonely pioneers—and crack much more quickly under strain. Nine-tenths of our seeming cleverness is simply the jitters and nothing else but.

There is a magnificent scene in Bernard Shaw's play, "Saint Joan"—noble words which drive straight at the core of our weakness. Joan of Arc is facing the Inquisition. Her friends have deserted her. Fortune has turned against. The stake looms before her.

Terrified, heartbroken though she is, she defies them all and defends her faith. They have told her that she is friendless and alone. Bravely her young voice cries—

"Do not think you can frighten me by telling me that I'm alone. France is alone; and God is alone; and what is my loneliness before the loneliness of my country and my God? I see now that the loneliness of God is His strength; what would He be if He listened to your jealous little counsels? Well, my loneliness shall be my strength, too."

We are alone. We cannot, really run away from our loneliness. Stop trying! Face and accept your solitude! Take it gratefully. Rest in it wisely.

Let your loneliness be your strength!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jesse Jones Learns That Nelson Is Real Boss of War Production

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Next to the president, Jesse Jones has long been the most powerful official in Washington. Secretary of commerce, head of the Federal Loan Agency, the Defense Plant Corporation and half a dozen other potent government bodies, the velvet-voiced Texan on more than one occasion even has disregarded the White House.

But it looks like at last Jones has met his master.

Behind the scenes, he and War Production Chief Donald Nelson had a crossing of swords and Jones definitely came off second best.

It happened this way: In organizing his administrative set-up, Nelson asked the army, navy, Maritime Commission and Defense Plant Corporation to designate an official to act as their top production executive. These officials deal directly with Nelson on all production problems of their agencies.

Lieut. Gen. Knudsen acts in this capacity for the army; Admiral Robinson for the navy; Admiral Vickery for the Maritime Commission; and Director Charles Henderson for the Defense Plant Corporation.

In addition to this, Nelson also informed the four agencies that he was attaching one of his personal assistants to the staff of these four officials, to act as his personal representative and to keep him informed of what was going on. The army, navy and maritime commission readily agreed and promised cordial cooperation.

But Jones, who had secretly had his cap set for Nelson's job, balked on such supervision of the Defense Plant Corporation.

According to the inside story he declared he was not going to put up with any "snooping Gestapo agent." To which Nelson is reported to have replied quietly that if Jones didn't like it, he could take the matter to the president.

Jones did not accept this challenge. He backed down and Nelson's man is now keeping an eagle eye on the DPC.

Note: When Nelson wrote the executive order arming him with wide powers to operate as war production czar, he very carefully included a provision giving him authority over Jones. The lawyers who made the first draft of the order omitted this, but Nelson personally inserted it. As an OPM official, he has seen Jones hold up urgently needed rubber, aluminum and tin programs, and Nelson was taking no chances on making certain who was boss.

Larger Glass.

HARDEST worked man at the Pan American Conference was Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state and head of the U. S. delegation. All day long he bargained with other delegates. Most of the night he burned the midnight oil at a table in his hotel room.

Attached to Welles to guard him against crackpots or possible Axis intruders was a Brazilian secret service man, Oliveira. Equally tired from following the energetic American delegate all day, Secret Serviceman Oliveira liked to retire as soon as he was sure Welles was alone in his hotel suite.

One night as Oliveira was about to go home, Welles sent out for a bottle of champagne. But only one glass arrived. That, concluded Secret Serviceman Oliveira meant that Welles had no guest, was having a private refresher.

But Oliveira waited a bit longer just to be sure Welles was alone. Suddenly the waiter appeared bearing another glass.

"Ah," decided the secret service man, "that means Welles has a guest. I will have to remain. It might be an Argentine caller. There might be an argument between them."

So, patiently he remained, well into the night. No one left Welles' room. Next morning, Secret Serviceman Oliveira queried the waiter, discovered that Welles had no caller, had sent out for the second glass because the first one was too small.

Maas' Probe.

ONE REASON for the house naval affairs committee's two-to-one turn-down of a Pearl Harbor probe was Representative Melvin Maas' previous orating to reporters.

The chunky Minnesotan is ranking GOP member of the committee and after a private session of the committee, told newsmen that an investigation was contemplated. Actually, no such decision had been reached. This is what really happened:

As the meeting was breaking up, and after several members had left, Maas suddenly declared that the committee ought to "look into" the Roberts report.

"The report is very inadequate in my opinion," he said. "It doesn't tell the whole story about all the factors and individuals responsible for our unalertness at Pearl Harbor. I think we should make a supplementary investigation to determine the true facts."

"The matter is closed as far as I am concerned," objected Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia. "The Roberts board made a very thorough investigation and, I think, a very frank report to the people."

"We should call Admiral Kimmel and General Short before the committee for questioning," persisted Maas. "I don't think they are entirely to blame for what happened. If others were responsible, we ought to know about it—and who they were."

Representative Ed Izac of California interposed, "It wouldn't surprise me if Justice Roberts did that in a separate report to the president with additional information not contained in the report made public."

"If there is such a report," retorted Maas, "this committee has a right to see it."

Vinson and Izac disagreed with Maas, contending that some of the findings of the Roberts' board undoubtedly were military secrets which would be beneficial to the enemy if made public.

This exchange ended the discussion. Committee members had forgotten about it until they picked up a late afternoon newspaper and, to their surprise, beheld Maas' statement that he could "assure the country" a thorough investigation of Pearl Harbor would be undertaken by the committee.

Note: Democrats are charging that partisan politics was behind Maas' action and that he was seeking to make political capital out of the Roberts report.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—There are a number of legends that no amount of fact can destroy. Indeed, these legends flourish best in a soil of untruth. Most of them have a certain tone of foolish reasoning, so it comforts people to keep them alive.

Consider the wholly erroneous belief that Somerset Maugham made no money at all out of the play "Rain," a dramatization of his short story "Miss Thompson." During the three-year engagement of that phenomenally successful play, the story grew that Maugham had disposed of the rights for a few dollars.

The statistician for Sam H. Harris, producer of the play, once authorized publication of statements proving that Maugham has profited to the extent of $100,000 or so. He had made a sensible arrangement, for he is a shrewd businessman. Yet the legend persists.

BROADWAY prefers to believe that its best known gambler, Arnold Rothstein, never lost a bet. That, of course, is absurd. Rothstein took his share of beatings at cards, at the racetracks, and even in the odd games of chance he devised as time-killers. One theory of his murder is that it was committed by a man to whom Rothstein had failed to redeem his "markers," or notes of indebtedness for gambling losses.

It is the fond fancy of night club owners that all such enterprises made fabulous profits during the prohibition era. Gaudy tales of the success of Texas Guinan, a certain family of bootlegging brothers and a partnership, still active, nourish that fancy. The truth is, cafe operation during the so-called dry spell was infinitely more precarious than it is today. The night club owner was at the mercy of any number of forces. The police might arrive and "throw his joint into the street." A crusading newspaper could close him up on charge of selling poisoned liquor. Gunmen could come along and shoot it out of being. And, oftener than not, the cash customers went elsewhere and simply allowed it to perish of mal-nutrition of the cash box.

THE fable that a stage understudy is in the best possible position to step into stardom has mighty small basis in fact, despite the devotion of movie writers to the contrary. Most understudies are that for a definite reason—that they lack the special talent to allow them to rise above the herd. The cold fact is that they rarely succeed to a star's role. Should the great player fall ill, the understudy fills the role only until the anxious producer can find somebody more suitable. Whereupon the understudy retires again into anonymity and small wages, and next season joins another company—again as understudy.

Anybody with time could go on at great length in the exploration and demolition of these legends. But perhaps the world is happier for them. It is very human to warm ourselves with tales of others' luck, be it good or bad.

2. What is the difference between a goldfish and a silverfish?
3. Was Stonewall Jackson a Confederate or a Union general?

A lie is a breach of promise: for whoever seriously addresses his discourse to another tacitly promises to speak the truth, because he knows that truth is expected.—(Paley).

Hints on Etiquette

Now that the war is here, it would be a good thing when "the girls" get together, to discuss the various branches of the service and insignia of each. If you learn something of these things, it will be appreciated by the men of your family and friends who are in the armed forces, and save you some embarrassment besides.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. A large, high speed submarine capable of accompanying the fleet in war operations across oceans. Also capable of operating on enemy coast and remaining long intervals away from a base.
2. A goldfish lives in the water; a silverfish is a primitive insect without wings, that makes its home in the bathroom, kitchen sink or between the leaves of books.
3. Confederate.

A Farmer's Diary

No Scent

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE AFTERNOON last spring, when I was planting peach trees near the border of the woods, I heard a terrible commotion in the thicket. A large cottontail darted out, with a dog in hot pursuit. The white tail bounding up and down and from side to side in the open, encouraged the pursuing hound and he renewed his efforts.

He was gaining with every second. The trail of the bounding rabbit was so clear that as I looked down at the unequal race, I could almost believe the eager yelping canine measured his victim with triumph, and envisioned a sumptuous feast in some secluded spot.

When they scurried from the weeds, the dog was 50 feet behind. When he was barely 15, something unaccountable happened. I looked away for a fraction of a second — the rabbit must have given a sidewise leap. I glimpsed the furry wild thing creeping up between high weeds, toward me. But the dog had lost the trail!

He stopped, confused, and his long black and white ears hung down like plummets. He sniffed the air, retraced his steps and seekingly ran his nose along the ground. He found nothing, but returned, chagrined, to the place where a rabbit track was left plainly on the dirt.

I was confused, myself. I did not understand how he could overlook so plain a trail, for he was an alert dog, with a keen nose.

All summer, whenever I came back to that vicinity, I thought of the incident, and wondered why the race had had so strange an outcome.

But one evening recently a biologist from Ohio State spoke in our town. In his lecture, he mentioned the protection Nature gives to expectant mothers of the wild, especially the rabbit. He said a cottontail, when carrying her young will leave no scent upon the ground. No dog, however cunning, can follow the path she takes, by simply following his nose.

Considering now the incident of last spring, I think this information solves for me the riddle. How many other wild mothers of the fields are similarly protected, I wonder?

GALION BOOSTS TEACHERS' PAY $10 PER MONTH

Janitors and Secretaries Also Affected as Board Votes Raises For 72.

GALION — The Galion board of education passed a resolution at its February meeting, Tuesday night, to give a flat raise of $10 per month for the remaining four months of the school year, February, March, April and May, to 72 employes of the Galion school system. This number includes 62 teachers, seven janitors, and three secretaries, but does not affect the superintendent's salary. The resolution provides that the 1942-1943 salary schedule will not be affected by the raise.

Action was taken after the board received a resolution from the Galion Classroom Teachers association which called for a 15 per cent raise. Prior to this time, janitors of the city had asked for a raise. The resolution from the teachers was passed at an all-city teachers meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Another resolution passed by the board asks for an advance draw from the county auditor of $25,000. Of this amount $15,000 is for the general fund and $10,000 for the bond and interest fund.

Report of the clerk, Isabel Monroe, showed a balance on Feb. 1 of $5,295. Bills approved for payment for the month by the board amounted to $3,400.

The board also passed a resolution providing that a woman teacher employed by the Galion city board of education may teach for the remainder of the school year during which she is married.

To fill the vacancy left by James Walters, biology instructor, who resigned Jan. 23 to enlist in the U. S. Medical Corps, the board hired Lloyd Babb of Route 1, Galion, as a substitute for the remainder of the school year at a rate of $1,125 per year.

Rental fees of the high school auditorium were placed at $25 per night for paid programs, a rehearsal night to be given for nothing; $15 per night for a paid advertiser that has no door charge.

Approval of the commencement committee's plans was made by the board. These call for a movie to be made by the graduates, student speakers and student music. Cost of making the movie in color will be approximately $100, this money to be realized from the sale of commencement tickets.

In the report by Supt. Povenmire it was stated that 116 pupils were served the first week of the hot lunch project at the West building. COUNCIL PLANS STIFF PENALTY IN TIRE THEFTS

Bucyrus Body Hears Proposal For Civil Air Patrol In Crawford County.

BUCYRUS—Situations brought about by the present war time emergencies brought to Bucyrus city council Tuesday night several problems for discussion among which were the questions of dealing with tire thieves, curtailment of working hours in gasoline stations and the question of assisting in establishing a Civil Air patrol in Crawford county.

Falling in line with action taken by the state in dealing with tire thieves, council authorized the city solicitor to prepare legislation making it possible to prosecute persons found guilty of tire and accessory theft with fines and imprisonment similar to provisions set up by the state.

In commenting on the action of council, Mayor William F. Whiteamire stated that he would make an example of the first person convicted, imposing the full $500 fine and five year imprisonment as set up by the state legislation.

Speaking in behalf of gasoline retailers and dealers in Bucyrus, Roy Cotsamire, headed a group of local retailers and dealers who appeared before council asking that council set up regulations for a 12 hour week day and a nine hour Sunday. Cotsamire pointed out that utilities would be saved by the shortened day and that station attendants would have available time for gardening and civil defense activity. The question was taken under advisement by council.

H. C. Ryan, president of the Aircraft Owners' and Pilots' association of Galion appeared before council asking that council consider cooperating with the Galion and Crestline city council and the county commissioners in designating Galion airport as a central port for the Civil Air patrol.

A statement of debt presented by City Auditor E. C. Oppenlander showed that Bucyrus was well within limitations with less than a half million debt for the first time in many years. Debt as of Dec. 31, 1941, totaled $499,000 as compared with $519,500 on Dec. 31, 1940.

ASK CLERK FOR RATION BOARDS

Commissioners, Council to Meet On Request at Ashland.

ASHLAND—Ashland city council has been requested to create a position of clerk for rationing boards. Claiming that increased duties of the rationing boards, which started out as tire rationers, now have automobiles and trucks to ration and sugar and other commodities in prospect which will make it impossible for them to handle all the work, Newton Mansfield, county administrator of rationing, and Edgar Koshl, chairman of the Ashland rationing board, asked council at their meeting this week to provide for the city's share of cost of office help.

It is believed that an arrangement providing stenographic and clerical help for the rationing board can be worked out with the county and county commissioners and city council plan to meet in the near future to provide such help as will be needed.

GALION — City council at its first meeting in February, Tuesday night, passed an ordinance to equalize the light and power rates of the Galion Municipal Light and Power plant.

At a previous meeting it was explained by Service Director Charles Geiger that the present rate structure offers a cheaper light rate than power rate whereby 2500 kilowatts of power costs $63 and 2500 kilowatts of light costs $41.

As passed by council, last night, the new ordinance provides the following rates: Light rates — first 100 kilowatt hours per month, .030 net per kwh; next 2400 kwh per month, .025 net per kwh; all over 2500 kwh .015. Power rates—first 100 kwh per month .830 net per kwh; next 2400 kwh .025; next 7500 kwh, .015; and all over 10,000 kwh .010.

A salary ordinance passed by council provides the salary of the service and safety director at $165 per month, and $85 per month from the light fund for his duties as director of light and power, making his salary $250 per month.

The salary of Albert Bauer, foreman of the waterworks, was raised from $160 per month to $170 and that of the bookkeeper in the electric light office, Florence Berry, was raised from $80 to $90 per month.

The director of public service and safety was authorized to advertise for bids for water meters, copper wire, transformers, water pipe and fittings, copper tubings, electric motors, light poles and lamps, curb stops and gasoline, fire hydrants, pig lead, valves, coal, road emulsion, fencing and bituminous material for road work, all needed in the various departments of the city.

Approval of Mayor William Amann's appointment of Leo A. Wildenthaler to a six-year term on the civil service commission also was made by council.

Wise to Conceal Jealousy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The man I'm in love with is divorced. I am unhappily married. He always seems anxious to see me whenever he comes over, but I've heard that he takes out another woman. He denies it. Do you think it would be wise to tell him I don't believe him and prove my point, or how should I go about it? How can I find out if he really cares for me? I don't want to be left in a lurch.

UNHAPPY.

Your letter doesn't say whether you are divorced or not. If you aren't, you're hardly in a position to object to the young man's attentions to others. You may have noticed that the women who keep their admirers on a loose rein hold them longer than those ladies who believe in the curbed bit method. Better not try any method to find out if he cares. It will only make you appear jealous. And while jealous, is almost the oldest human emotion, it's the part of wisdom to conceal it.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm very much in love with a soldier, but he doesn't make enough money so that we can be married. Do you think we could live on a soldier's pay? I've always been thrifty and am willing to try to get along. I'm working now, but must give up my job if I marry. What would you suggest we do?

GIRL IN LOVE.

You know, of course, that your soldier sweetheart will have to get the approval of his superior officer before he marries. Granting this, married privates usually have their wives live as near the reservation as possible. If they take their meals at home, they are allowed a small sum for rations in addition to their pay. Supplies may be bought at the commissary much cheaper than at ordinary shops.

Cupid is recognized by soldiers, but their wives often have to help out with a job, or part-time work. You'll agree it's a struggle, but many have made the grade. My advice is that you save all you can for the happy day, and if you can do so, try to get another job.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm devotedly in love with a certain young man and I think he cares for me too. We had a misunderstanding and quarrelled, and I hadn't seen him for six months, until a few days ago when he attended one of the socials at our church.

I can't forget him, and although I've been out with several other boys, this one stays longest in my memory. We didn't have a chance to speak to each other alone, so I don't know how he feels toward me now. Please give me a word of counsel as to how I may act toward him, so that we can make up again.

JANET.

It's so much easier from the "outside looking on" to see the folly of two people staying "mad" over some foolish little misunderstanding, when they really care deeply. And the tragedy of such a situation is that after a while they become adjusted to this estrangement and go their separate ways.

Next time you meet him, why not put out your hand in greeting, and say "I'm not mad any more—are you?"

Care of The Hands Important

By MME QUI VIVE

"Hands as soft as dove's down." Sounds grand, doesn't it? The woman who washes the baby, the dishes, the shirts and the socks who puts her house in order after the decorating crew moves out who, when the need arrives, tramps out to the garage and cleans up the family bus feels pretty sure that her hands are not as soft as dove's down. They are rough and reddy. The natural oil has been washed off them so frequently that the skin feels like fish scales. She could flop down on the floor and weep.

Well! the dear lady can console herself. She is carrying on her job gallantly and self-neglect is not uncommon. She has a useful place in the world, and that can't be said of some of the idlers who never lift a finger except to hail a taxi. Better a few beauty griefs than to be shiftless.

When Mrs. Useful has the children tucked away in bed for the night she should devote a half hour to her beautifying needs, even though the baby will be up at crack of dawn. Let her give particular care to those poor hands that toil throughout the day, that are in and out of hot or cold water, that must fight dust and grime, clean the kettles and pans. They have something coming to them.

She should apply toilet lanoline freely, massage the flesh vigorously.

The more lanoline that is rubbed in the better. Start at the finger bases, thumb upward, doing little circles over the finger nails. Plenty of oil will keep them from cracking and breaking. When the flesh has become soft lift it gently from the nail fabric, using an orangewood stick for the purpose. That practice is an insurance against hangnails. If any little shreds appear they should be snipped away with the curved needle-point scissors, the points held downward.

Wrists and elbows will benefit from massage, will look whiter, the skin will be softer. Elbows are seldom anything to yodel about. The skin thickens there, often takes on a gray cast.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"And who may that be?" Stephen Redfield asked, as I paused.

There was an avidity in his voice which flashed a signal light of danger to me, and made me change my plan as it were in midair.

I never had intended, of course, to give him the name of Mrs. Stewart, the woman with whom my mother, my brother-cousin Jack Bickett and I had boarded for so many years in Brooklyn. But the thought of her had been in my mind so strongly that I was afraid I unwittingly might give some clue to her identity.

There was no remotest chance, of course, that she had heard from Jack, but the gangsters linked to Steve would believe she had, and I shuddered to think of what I might have brought upon the defenseless old woman if they ever should find out whom I had meant in talking to Steve.

Bickett's Old Friend.

"There is an old man," I said, "who used to be a great friend of Jack Bickett's father, and who took a great interest in the son and helped him in many ways. From sheer gratitude, as well as from self interest, Jack may have written to him."

"Where does he live?" he asked next. "In the city, I trust. Time is precious in this instance."

"He lives somewhere in the Bronx," I said, "or did the last I heard of him." I warily placed my fictional old man, masculine embodiment of Mrs. Stewart, as far as possible from Brooklyn, the old lady's habitat.

"The needle in the haystack," Steve commented sourly. "But, what's his name, and haven't you his former address somewhere?"

"Of course I have his former address," I said sedately. "I always keep all addresses. But—you surely do not expect that I am going to give them to you, do you?"

Redfield Ferocious.

He stared at me in stupefaction that suddenly had something feral in it.

"Why not?" he demanded. "What good does it do to tell me this about some old man, if you don't tell me where to find him?"

"You would get nothing out of him," I said calmly. "Suppose you, or any stranger went to him and asked about his old friend's son, Jack Bickett? Do you imagine he would give you a single bit of information?"

The actor's heavy eyebrows were drawn into a frown that to me had something ferocious about it.

"There are ways," he muttered darkly, then stopped abruptly, and regarded me furtively.

I pretended to misunderstand him, and laughed lightly.

"Oh, you men!" I exclaimed. "You are so sure of yourselves. You think you would be able to persuade the old man to tell you his secrets if you only had a chance to turn on your charm."

An Opening Wedge.

"I might, at that," he said with an answering grin which to me had something positively satanic about it.

"But why have you told me this?" he asked again. "It's only tantalizing me."

I wondered how great would be his anger if I told him the truth—that I was simply putting up what Mary would term a "colossal bluff," in order to provide an opening wedge for my campaign for Mary. But I had no wish to risk that anger, and I spoke hurriedly.

"Except for his wife, I am Jack Bickett's only living relative. This old man knows that, and knows me. That is, he did in the old time, when my mother was alive. I have not seen or heard from him for years. But if you wish, I will make it my business to find him and if I can get from him any information concerning Jack, I will bring it back to you. Will that be satisfactory?"

"It will have to be," he said a bit ungraciously, then apparently he became suddenly conscious of his gaucherie.

"I mean, of course," he said, "that I am eternally grateful to you for the trouble you are taking for me," he said elaborately.

"It is no trouble at all," I said truthfully, for my journey to the imaginary home of my mythical old man would be one of the brain only and I could bring back my lack of information at any time.

"I trust you will be able to go soon," he said next, with a wary, speculative look at me.

"I shall try to run up this afternoon," I said, and caught a gleam in his eyes which I interpreted fearfully. He meant to have me followed, so that he or his comrades themselves could deal with my "old man," in whose existence he evidently believed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOW CONTRACTS HARD

Low contracts, unless they are underbid ones, generally present more difficult problems than high ones. The strength is more closely divided between the two sides, and the declarer consequently has to keep track of more different elements. When you are in a slam, the defenders usually will have only a few cards which offer any threat to the success of your endeavor, so that you can concentrate all of your resources upon how to thwart those. Working on a difficult low contract, however, you frequently have to reckon very carefully on what is going to happen to a number of different spots in the hand.

	♠ 10 9 6 ♥ 7 6 ♦ A Q 2 ♣ A J 9 5 2
♠ Q 8 4 ♥ K J 8 4 2 ♦ 8 ♣ Q 8 7 4	W. N. E. S.	♠ K 5 2 ♥ A 10 9 ♦ K J 9 6 5 3 ♣ 6
	♠ A J 7 3 ♥ Q 5 3 ♦ 10 7 4 ♣ K 10 3

(Dealer South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♦
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠

When he passed the 3-Spades, South knew he was in for a job of trying to manage a seven-trump situation, as his partner would have raised instead of rebidding clubs if he had held four spades. But he was one of our best managers of mean hands, S. Garton Churchill, now of Washington and formerly of Long Island, who likes hard jobs, especially when in national championship play, as he was this time in Richmond, Va.

West led the singleton of his partner's diamond suit, and immediately came the chance for the first really good play of the hand. Knowing East had the honors, he nevertheless played the diamond 2. Had he won the A, East, when in the lead next, would have led a diamond for West to ruff. But, winning now with the J, he would not lead up to dummy's tenace. Instead, he cashed the heart A and led the 10. Good play number 2 was in covering this with the Q to make West get in the lead. West offered the heart J, ruffed in the dummy, and the spade 10 was sent to the Q. Back came the club 4, the J being played and the 10 put under it to unblock—good play number 3.

Now the spade J was finessed, the A dropped the K, the club K was taken and the 9 finessed to keep the lead with dummy. The club A and established 5 now furnished two diamond discards from the closed hand, and the spade 7 took the final trick. The defenders had taken only one trick in diamonds, two in hearts and one in spades when they seemed certain to set the contract one or two tricks.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, February 5.

An extremely lively state of affairs is read from the prevailing lunar aspects. This activity will be emphasized in travel, writtings, communications and agencies. Exercise caution with all these, avoiding loss and extravagance. It should prove happy and hopeful.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and interesting year, with successful travel, correspondence, dealings with agencies and those in powerful positions. But these should be handled with discretion and caution, not indulging in force, opposition or extravagance.

A child born on this day should be versatile, lively and spirited, although nervous and high-tensioned, probably creating opposition or reproval from those in authority or employers.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ Q 7 6 5 ♥ J 7 ♦ K 10 7 5 4 ♣ Q 8
♠ J 10 9 ♥ 9 8 4 3 2 ♦ 3 ♣ A 5 4 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ A 8 4 2 ♥ 6 5 ♦ J 9 8 2 ♣ K 10 9

DR. G. A. WASHBURNE IS GUEST SPEAKER

Head of O. S. U. Department of History Gives Talk For A. A. U. W. Members and Guests Tuesday Evening.

TELLING a large audience of University women and their guests that the "people of today have grand stand seats to watch the greatest history ever made," Dr. George A. Washburne, head of the department of history at Ohio State university, marshalled many facts to support his major thesis that "History never repeats itself."

Dr. Washburne's talk was given following the dinner attended by A. A. U. W. members and friends at the First Congregational church last evening. The speaker stated that "History is only a segment of time in retrospect and no definite laws can be applied in its understanding. The study of history will give no sure answer for the events of the future, yet nothing is so valuable in interpreting the efforts of the human race."

His address, "Behind Contemporary History," was divided by Dr. Washburne into three parts. The first of these showed that beginning with the Greeks, efforts were made for international cooperation. One of the great principles of history, said Dr. Washburne, is the trying again of something that has been tried before. Giving a pattern from history to apply to the dictators, Dr. Washburne fit that pattern to many dictators of the past.

A vocal ensemble from John Simpson Junior high school entertained with two selections: "Morning Prayer" and "Prayer of Patriotism." A short business meeting, conducted by the vice president and program chairman, Mrs. Tom Hoffman, preceded the program. At that time reports were given on progress of various activities sponsored by the group. Mrs. Earl Gaar, social chairman, announced that a bridge party will be held at 7:30 p. m. on Feb. 10 at the home of Mrs. K. E. Buhr. Reservations are to be made by Saturday, Feb. 7.

Mrs. Harold Burns assumed the new role of Fellowship and Scholarship chairman for the branch. She was appointed to fill the position formerly held by Mrs. Gordon Colby. Announcement was made that the Current Problems group will meet on Feb. 24 at the home of Mrs. Hoffman on Helen avenue.

Mrs. Parkinson Tells About Trip to Panama

Tourist club members listened with great interest to Mrs. W. L. Parkinson's description of her nine-month visit with her daughter in the Panama Canal Zone and of her return trip to the United States, when they met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. E. G. Corwin, 138 West Second street. Twenty-three members were in attendance.

Every night following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the Canal Zone residents submitted to a blackout, said Mrs. Parkinson. At first, the blackouts began at 7 p. m. Later the lights had to be turned off at 9 p. m. These blackouts did not end until 5:45 the following morning. The citizens were put on the "honor system," the speaker said, and if they failed to co-operate, the main switch was pulled, resulting in lack of electric refrigeration and other conveniences.

Movies and parties must begin at 5 p. m. and be over by 7 p. m., she added. Mrs. Parkinson described the beauty of Port Au Prince, Haiti, Balboa, Canal Zone, Panama and told about the housing, churches, impressive ceremonies, natives and their occupations, fruits, the abundance of such flowers as orchids and gardenias, Panama City, the ruins of Old Panama and the historical "Golden Altar."

Mrs. Parkinson explained to her audience that she could say very little about the fortifications in that territory because of censorship. When she and her daughter, whose husband is a civil service employe in the Canal Zone, returned to this country on the "Ancon," a Navy cruiser, their ship was in a blackout for the entire zig-zag voyage of six days and six nights. They sailed on Dec. 21, and upon their arrival at a United States port on Dec. 28, their ship was taken over by the government for use as a transport. The Ancon was engaged in a submarine chase on Dec. 24, which the speaker described as a "distressing experience."

General discussion by the club members followed the talk and Mrs. Parkinson exhibited unusual and beautiful articles which she had brought back with her from Panama, Jamaica, South America and Haiti. Meeting on Feb. 17 will be held at the home of Mrs. Parkinson. Mrs. S. D. Hoover will give a paper on "Our Greatest American Painters" and "Our Greatest American Sculptors" will be the subject of a paper by Mrs. A. C. Tuttle.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Two classes of our people seem to be determined that they are not going to suffer the effect of war inflation and are not going to pay any war taxes. They are some farmers, and at least the CIO group of workers. This is simpler than it sounds.

Gen. Johnson.

Taxes are a principal element in the cost of living. This does not refer to income taxes alone which, until now, have borne lightly on workers and farmers. It includes the tax element of cost, which is included in the price of everything the very poorest of us consume — in other words, the cost of living.

It has amounted, as this column has several times shown, to about 22 per cent of the cost of living. These are hidden taxes. They are paid without protest because they are not seen.

Now, as we are informed almost daily, taxes are to become the principal element in the cost of living. They are to be multiplied. Hidden taxes will be increased and nearly every earner will pay some income taxes. Won't that hit everybody?

Oh, no! The CIO high command has announced as its policy, and advised its member unions to insist, that all wages be increased just as fast and as far as the cost of living rises.

In other words, while this class may have to pay the increased taxes as reflected in increased costs, they are to get the money in increased wages. This, in turn, will increase costs which again will increase taxes and so on through a dreary and never-ending spiral of inevitable inflation which everybody but the CIO members will suffer.

No, not everybody. Another great and politically powerful class has a very similar gadget formula. As and where shortage occurs farm prices—food prices—will go up. The department of agriculture and AAA have enough contact with stocks and production to keep them pretty well in line.

But there is a joker in that deck also. Under the price-control bill, they can't be regulated to prevent their rising as fast as the cost of living may rise—which is to say as fast as higher taxes, and the impact of inflation may rise to increase the farmers' cost of living.

Thus, among our population, are two great classes which have taken out, or intend to take out, pretty good insurance against both increased war costs and increased war taxes.

All this is not to say that both or either of these clever schemes will work to the intended result. There are a good many chances for failure of both.

But it is to say quite plainly that we have in our midst spokesmen for two great groups—labor leaders on the one hand, and congressional representatives from farm states on the other — who are quite willing to exempt their own constituents from the real sweat and burden of this war and let the remaining general public bear the brunt of it.

It doesn't check with what is being demanded from other classes in other fields—that industry give up its occupation, that small business submit to ruin, that families be broken up into cannon fodder, that we all give up conveniences and change our very manner of living—above all that we do all this—as we are doing it—without complaint or attempt at evasion.

As the president has suggested, the price control bill must be amended. It is time to do that now before great harm results.

Council OK's More City Defense Funds

COUNCIL SENDS GAS 'CURFEW' TO COMMITTEE

Takes Step After 75 Station Operators Voice Plea For Ordinance Setting Hours.

Mansfield's city council failed to take any definite action on a proposed "curfew" ordinance for city gasoline stations last night although approximately 75 service station operators piled into the municipal courtroom and demanded immediate action.

The proposed legislation, which would close all gasoline stations in the city at 7 p. m. daily and 1 p. m. Sundays, was referred to council's utilities and traffic committees for joint study.

Walter L. Beckley, a member of the special committee of the Mansfield Gasoline Retailers' association, made a plea for the immediate passage of the ordinance, just before council was asked to consider it.

"The rationing of tires and other auto supplies has cut heavily into our sales," said Beckley, "and these in turn caused gasoline sales to fall off at an alarming rate. The men in this association have been connected with the business for several years and their livelihood depends on protection.

"We have tried to make the ordinance fair to all concerned," he continued, "and request that the law be made effective tomorrow, February 4."

Members of the association, which claims 90 per cent of the Mansfield dealers as members, have been observing a voluntary curfew schedule for three weeks and it is believed they are asking a uniform ordinance to force other stations not complying with the shortened work schedule to fall into line.

The proposed ordinance calls for the operation of gasoline stations in the city only between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. on week-days and between 7 a. m. and 1 p. m. on Sundays. Motorists needing gasoline at other times would be supplied by a few stations which would be kept open for emergency duty. The police would be in charge of setting up a schedule of the stations remaining open for emergency duty and motorists would have to apply to police for emergency gas permits.

James R. Anderson, chairman of council's utilities committee and Clifford G. Knarr, chairman of the streets committee, said that their committees would meet "sometime" this week. A late adjournment of council last night prevented the committees from holding a joint meeting which they had planned. Knarr said that the meeting would be held Friday night and that action would be taken "as soon as possible."

Both Councilmen Russell D. Porch and C. N. Shultz assured the attending gasoline dealers that action on their proposed ordinance would be taken soon.

HUNT BRUTAL CHILD SLAYER

Army Offers Aid To Police In Search For Attacker of Girl, 6.

(By International News Service)

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal. — With only the vaguest description of the suspect to guide them in their search, police and sheriff's deputies scoured southern California today for the brutal slayer of six-year-old Shirley Marie Bell.

The body of the little girl, who had been strangled to death with her bright-hued skipping rope, was found yesterday in a shallow grave in a wild, brush-covered area of Lytle Creek four miles northwest of San Bernardino.

The girl had been criminally attacked, according to a preliminary medical examination.

Sheriff E. L. Shay declared that every man in his office will be used in tracking down the slayer. Major General Walter K. Wilson, commanding southern California defenses, pledged army support in the manhunt. He said that as many soldiers as the sheriff might require would be available.

Discovery of the body brought to a tragic close a search in which 400 soldiers, CCC enrollees, Boy Scouts and other participated after it was learned she never had arrived at school for which she started Monday morning.

Playmates reported they had seen her riding before school time on the handlebars of a bicycle pedaled by a poorly dressed man they judged to be about 30 years old.

Her body was found by a policeman and two Mexican searchers.

COLORFUL WILD WEST SHOWMAN, 'PAWNEE BILL' DIES ON RANCH

(By International News Service)

PAWNEE, Okla. — "Pawnee Bill," one of the most colorful figures of the old west, was gone today. The one-time partner and close friend of the late Buffalo Bill died quietly last night at the age of 82.

His real name was Major Gordon W. Lillie, but to most of his friends and acquaintances, particularly to those who recalled the exploits of his earlier years, he remained "Pawnee Bill."

He had been in failing health since an automobile accident in September, 1936, in which he was severely injured and his famous wife, the former May Manning of Philadelphia, was killed.

Many years ago he was adopted by the Pawnee Indian tribe at Pawnee as a white chief and that gave him the name he bore the remainder of his life. He was only 17 when he became a teacher and interpreter at the Pawnee agency.

With a band of the tribesmen, he joined the "Buffalo Bill" troupe in the early 1880's. He married Miss Manning, the daughter of a Philadelphia physician, in 1888.

The bride learned to ride and shoot. As the renown of the couple spread, "Pawnee Bill" established his own wild west outfit. It flourished and in 1908 the "Buffalo Bill" and "Pawnee Bill" wild west shows were combined.

In 1913 the two partners separated and "Pawnee Bill" moved to his 1,000-acre ranch where he maintained one of the country's largest herds of Buffalo.

"Buffalo Bill" died in 1917, a few years after the partnership with "Pawnee Bill" was dissolved.

MEETINGS SET

Farmers To Hear Discussions on Machinery Uses.

The first two meetings in a series on preparing farm machinery for increased production of food this summer will be held Friday at Shelby and the CCC camp southeast of Mansfield, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Speaker at the sessions will be R. D. Barden, extension specialist in agricultural engineering at Ohio State university. He will discuss and demonstrate the proper adjustment of machinery for "all-out" food production.

The Shelby meeting will be at 9:30 a. m. at Black's hardware store. The afternoon session will be at 1:30 p. m. in the CCC camp garage on state route 39.

Ganyard said the two meetings will be especially for farmers in Sharon, Plymouth, Jackson, Madison and Mifflin township, but others in the nearby areas may attend.

The meetings will be conducted by the Richland County War board as a part of its educational program for farmers.

CITY'S CLUBS PAY THE PIPER

Night Spots, Dance Halls Turn In $212 for Licenses.

Mansfield dance-hall and night club operators paid the piper $212.50 during January. Mayor William J. Locke in his monthly report to city council last night stated that $212.50 of the $842.40 collected by his office during the past month was for the licensing of dance halls.

The mayor also reported that he received $12.50 for a skating license, $62.50 for theater licenses, $375 for taxicab licenses, $112 for barbers' licenses, $20 for an itinerant merchant's license, $5.40 for peddler licenses, $34.50 for special police licenses, $5 for photograph sales, and $3 for a marriage license.

Laff-a-Day

"Sure, it looks lifelike, ma. We got pop inside!"

Mansfield traffic officers are beginning to enjoy making out accident reports, especially with the new equipment received by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals. Formerly the patrolmen drew a sketch of the scene of the accident and the result was sometimes something which looked like a study in surrealism. Now Boals has obtained little rubber stamps carrying prints of a miniature truck, passenger car, and pedestrians. The patrolmen use these stamps to depict how the accident occurred and are rather proud of the results of their work.

Wesley Frey, Ashley gasoline station operator, whose wrist watch was taken from the service station wash rooms, had the watch back in his possession today. He followed a truck driver 30 miles to Mansfield to recover it, knowing that the trucker was the only person in the wash room between the time Frey left it and the time he missed the watch. Frey contacted police who questioned the driver when he stopped here to unload scrap iron. The driver turned the watch over to its owner. No charges were filed.

Mansfield is due to get a new inhalator soon. City council last night accepted the gift of $80 from the Junior Association of Commerce as half the purchase price of an inhalator for use by the police department. The fire department and several of the city ambulance services have inhalators but the police have never had one of their own. The new inhalator would be used by police to help revive persons overcome by gas, electric shock or to attempt to revive drowned persons.

Charles Scholtz, a great pinball machine fan, tells the top story of the week about pinball machines which he declares is true. The story goes that some ingenious inventor has perfected a tilt device on the machine which, instead of lighting the word "tilt," yells it out at the startled player, whose embarrassment affords much amusement for the hangers-on.

PROFITS UP

Ohio Brass, Re-electing All Officers, Shows Gains.

An increase in company profits, and an increase in the amount of its defense work was reported at the annual meeting of directors of the Ohio Brass company at its Mansfield plant yesterday.

All officers, headed by President C. K. King and Executive Vice President George L. Draffan, were re-elected. Directors had been returned to their posts at the annual stockholders' meeting held in Newark, N. J., the previous day.

The company's consolidated balance sheet for 1941 showed a net profit for the year of $897,673, as compared with a figure of $720,117 for 1940. The figure was the highest reported by the company since 1937.

The annual report on company activities, asserting that an increasing amount of munitions materials is being manufactured, added that by rearranging existing facilities, adopting multiple shift operations and purchasing new equipment, the company is "bending every effort to cooperate in the war production program."

ALLOWS MONEY TO FENCE CITY WATER SYSTEM

Also Purchases Land Near Well During Busy Session of City Fathers.

Mansfield's city council last night took two more steps to put into operation its plan to protect the city's waterworks system from any possible sabotage.

Although the city has purchased $5,000 worth of wire fencing to erect around the Woodland reservoir, the Maxwell Springs pumping station, and five of the more important wells, it still needed $1,000 to pay for the installation of the fences.

Council approved the appropriation of the erection fund last night and also purchased about a half acre of land, located near one of the city wells, for $27.

W. C. Statler, city engineer, explained to council that the city had always thought that the small piece of land was city property but when it was decided to fence it in as part of the protective area, engineers learned that the land was owned by Edward D. Stump, Mansfield R. D. 6.

Stump agreed to sell the land for $25 and the $2 necessary to transfer the deed, so council accepted and authorized Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to proceed with erecting the fences.

Council also:

Gave a first reading to an ordinance creating the position of a roof drainage inspector for 10 months at a salary of $125 per month.

Gave a second reading to an ordinance permitting the Dominion Electric company to build an overhead-bridge across Elm street.

Changed the grades on East First street from Bushnell street to the Pennsylvania railroad and on Bowers avenue near East First street.

Passed a resolution to improve East First street from Bushnell street to the Pennsylvania railroad and to assess adjoining property-holders for the cost.

Gave an ordinance for the leasing of a vacant lot at the southern end of Walnut street as a public parking lot a second reading.

Authorized the designation of one of the two deputy clerks in the municipal court to act as official court stenographer with a $10 monthly wage increase.

Named Councilman Roy W. Vaughn to act as a member of the fire pension board and Councilman Michael Mihalick to act as a member of the police pension board.

Named A. L. Allen, Dimon Herring and William J. Beer, jr., to act as assessors for assessments against property-holders owning property adjoining 14 street and sewer projects improved during 1941. The assessors will be paid $5 fo reach project which they are called upon to make assessments.

Ohio Prisoners Offer to Ride Torpedoes In War

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Warden Frank D. Henderson of the Ohio penitentiary said today that he has received hundreds of letters from prisoners offering to "ride torpedoes" or serve as "suicide pilots" with the armed forces.

"We've received lots of 'kites' since war was declared," Henderson said. "Kite," he explained, is a prison term for a letter to the warden that expresses high hopes for freedom.

Henderson said prisoners who desired military training and were qualified would be paroled to the army after completing a course in prison. He added that no firearms would be used in prison drill.

He said some of the letters were from "psychopathic" inmates, but that most were sincere attempts to aid the nation's war effort.

Athletic Supplies Win Second-Half City Loop Title

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Tyger Tutor Vern Hoffman is frantic these days, and tearing his hair. What there is left.

He has just discovered, to his amazement, that Tyger Guard Ken Krupp will be 20 years old on Feb. 15.

"I had no idea Krupp was that old," gasps Hoffman. "Now I'll have to reconstruct my basketball team all over again in time for the district tournament."

A 20-year-old Krupp won't be eligible for further high school athletic competition after Feb. 15.

And that isn't all. Reaching his 20th birthday on the 15th, Krupp will be just in time for a stroll to his selective service registration point to sign up in the new draft on Feb. 16.

The word is getting around that Ken won't wait for a draft call. He has his eye on the navy.

Meanwhile Hoffman is casting his eye about, and letting it rest on Vere Smith's reserve squad much longer than Vere would like.

Bob Winbigler's assault on the all-time Mansfield high school scoring record gets top billing these days in the big tent of the Tyger hoop circus. Center ring and all that sort of thing.

But there's a side show going on that threatens to take away the play to a quieter spot on the midway. Star of the side show is Bitsy Bobby Baker, who's sometimes known as "Peanuts," and who has been doing all right for himself in the scoring department as a member of Vere Smith's Tyger reserves.

While Winbigler has compiled 171 points in 14 games, just five away from tying Gene Miller's complete season mark of 176, Baker is just 10 points behind Windy with 161 in 14 games. That makes Winbigler's game average 12.2 and Baker's 11.7.

Winbigler has been more consistent, and, ergo, Baker has been more sensational. Here are their successive game scores:

* * *

Winbigler—
8-3-13-17-11-18-15-6-13-12-17-21-5-12
Baker—
11-10-12-9-2-23-16-4-10-2-26-6-18-12

* * *

In spite of their difference in size, big Bob and little Bob have much in common in their general style of play. Both break fast, drive hard, and flip one-handed shots from all angles and distances. And you can't keep either one of 'em from shooting.

There's one difference in their shooting. Windy depends on a push shot, while "Peanuts" has a hook shot that he can pull right out of his hip pocket.

Can Baker beat Windy to that scoring top?

Or maybe the question is: Will he?

For when he is hot, he is hotter than hot.

And when he is cold, he is chilly.

(Right here the old Podger gets put on the spot.

For writing this stuff, he is silly.)

It will be Coach Harry Mehock of Appleseed again for the rest of the school term, after this week.

So Supt. Larry Miller informs me.

Miller explained that it's so late in the year, it's difficult to get anyone to finish the term. And besides, says he, the basketball season is almost over now, and all Harry will have left is track. Which is right up his lane.

Mehock this time will succeed Charles Fall, who leaves the Mansfield school system Friday after two months' service, for induction in the army Monday.

Baseball Aids War Efforts

Majors To Play Night Ball, Buy Defense Bonds.

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Major league baseball put its shoulder to the wheel today in all-out support of the American war effort.

National and American league tycoons, meeting yesterday with baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, voted:

1. Permission for 161 night games.

2. Removal of all restrictions on Sunday doubleheaders.

3. Co-operation with the morale divisions of the armed forces.

4. Allotment of 10 per cent of all baseball salaries for defense bonds and stamps.

5. Approval of two All-Star games for the ball and bat fund.

President Roosevelt's "play ball" letter inspired the increase in night games so that day defense workers will get their share of the national pastime. The magnates welcomed the suggestion, primarily because of a sincere desire to aid the war effort but also because of the financial aid in what had been expected to be precarious season.

So the National league will play 84 night games and the American league, 77. Fourteen night games were allotted each club equipped to play nocturnal ball except Washington. The Senators persistently held out for 28 games and were granted 21 in a compromise.

The decision to co-operate with the military morale divisions left both leagues open for a large number of exhibition games with service teams.

The 10 per cent salary deduction for defense bonds and stamps was made bindnig on executives, the commissioner, league presidents and club officials. But such action in connection with other baseball salaries—players, clerks and park employers—will be voluntary.

These Rens Meet House of David Tonight

PUGGY BELL

SONNY BOSWELL

DUKE CUMBERLAND

In the lineup of the famous New York Renaissance professional basketball team meeting the equally famous House of David Bearded Aces tonight at the high school gym will be the three stars shown here. Clarence (Puggy) Bell is rapidly becoming one of the most dangerous shots on the team. Roscoe (Duke) Cumberland, six-foot, two-inch under-bucket star, comes from Toledo Libbey high school. Another Toledo boy is Sonny Boswell from Scott high school, a fast man and a high scorer with a 15-point per game average.

Rens Return to High School Gym to Battle Bearded Aces

The New York Renaissance, America's greatest show in pro basketball, returns to Mansfield High school gym tonight at 8:30, for an exhibition game with the Original House of David quintet.

The Rens, who always draw bigger crowds here than any other pro five and, who never fail to please with their amazing showmanship are expected to emerge victorious after a terrific battle, even though the "Bearded Aces" have won 61 out of 67 games this season.

This is no reflection on the Long Beards, however, as pro cage critics generally admit the Rens can edge any club in the nation in a series of games.

When it comes to putting on the show, the Israelites are sure to make the Colored Wizards look bad. The Bearded Wonders specialize in crowd pleasing and have worked up an assortment of tricks calculated to keep fans in an uproar.

The instigator of most of the fun is genial George Anderson, who has never enjoyed a haircut or shave in his life. Despite his long tresses, which reach way down in back and which he braids while playing, the world famous Anderson is quite an athlete. Recently he was offered a contract to play baseball with the Chicago Cubs, but returned the document unsigned because it had a clause in it which would have forced him to shed his foliage and that is against Anderson's religion.

Until this week five of the bearded beauties were religious members of the cult of King Ben in Benton Harbor and wore long whiskers. Monday Forward Karstens, a whale of a player, was ordered to take his physical examination for army induction. Word has not reached Mansfield as this goes to press whether or not Karstens passed the test. If he did the Davids may be weakened somewhat, although Manager Anderson assured City Cage League officials who are staging the game that he has a very good replacement.

Each club boasts one exceptionally accurate shotmaker. "Sonny" Boswell, the Rens' All-American ace point maker, is versatile in that he can shoot well from anywhere on the floor, either at full speed or while standing flat footed. Russ Anderson, the Davids' 6 ft. 6 inch center, who needs glasses to see his way around the court, is probably the best one-handed long shot in the game, bar none.

No story about the Bearded Aces is complete without mentioning Bob Hallisey. A former Holy Cross eager, Hallisey is particularly noted for his clowning antics in which he acts as a stooge for George Anderson, the Beards' No. 1 fun maker.

The combination of a thrilling cage game replete with sensational passing plus the best floor show in basketball is expected to lure a goodly number of basketball fanatics to Mansfield High gym tonight.

A preliminary game involving the City A league's second half champion Athletic Supplies and the fast stepping Flxi Clippers of Loudonville is scheduled at 7:30.

Ashland Beats Rams, 52-30

Savannah, Garber Squads Also Win Benefit Tilts.

Madison high school cagers were beaten last night by Ashland, 52-30, in one of the three games played in Ashland McDowell auditorium to aid the Infantile Paralysis fund.

In the other games Savannah shaded Perrysville, 37-36, and the Garber printers of Ashland edged the Loudonville Flxible Clippers, 49-47.

Trading buckets during the early part of the game, Ashland forged ahead, 12-8, at the end of the first quarter, 22-14 at the half and 38-23 at the three-quarter mark.

Stentz and Bartley of Ashland led the scoring with 16 and 13 points respectively and trailing them was Ken Windsor of the Ram squad with 10 points.

* * *

In the Savannah-Perrysville game the two leading Ashland county loop teams fought on even terms all the way, tieing the score up 33 all in the last stanza. From there Paul Weaver and Galen Brubaker iced the match for Savannah with a basket apiece.

* * *

Playing with all stars picked from other Ashland city loop teams, the printers caught a Clipper lead of 23-20 at the half and went on to win by the two points.

The Clippers will play the Mansfield Athletic Supplies at 7:30 p. m. today in a preliminary game at Mansfield high school gymnasium.

Meet Westinghouse In Play-Off Battle

McGinty Sets Scoring Record For Single Game With 21 Points

ATHLETIC SUPPLIES won the second half championship of the City "A" basketball league last night with a 37-29 victory over their arch rivals, Yuncker Sports, in the final night of play of the regular schedule at the high school gym.

The Athletics will now meet Westinghouse, first-half titlists, in a play-off for the season's crown.

Other games last night saw Westinghouse wallop Ohio Public Service 37-23, and Blue Goose Sohioans swamp City News 50-34.

Athletics blanked Yuncker's in the first quarter, getting away to an 11-0 lead, but the Sports came back to outscore the champs in each of the next two periods.

Score at the half was 19-10, and at the third quarter 27-19 in favor of the Supplies. Each team tallied 10 points in the final stanza.

Bruce McGinty of the Athletics set a new scoring record for the season with 21 points on nine buckets and three free tosses, and clinched the league scoring championship. Gilliland led the Sports with seven points.

O. P. S. gave the Westies a battle for the first half. At the quarter Westinghouse was out in front 8-5, and at the half by only 14-13.

Then Hank Richards' wrecking crew went to work in the third heat to outscore their opponents 15-2 and pile up a 29-15 margin. MacCartey paced the winners with 10 points while Chuck Burton got 14 for the losers.

* * *

A wild scoring bee drew the curtain for the league's regular schedule. Bob Crawford of Blue Goose and Joe Miller of City News each went wild in the first half, Crawford marking up 11 points and Miller 10 as the Sohioans stepped out with a 24-16 lead.

With that inspiration, the entire Blue Gose team caught fire in the second half, and coasted to it 50-34 win.

Uncertain Destiny + + + + + +

By Betty Webb
(Copyright 1942)

CHAPTER XXV

Linda mulled over this problem as something to divert her attention from her own marital troubles. Then she inaugurated a plan which, in weeks to come, would prove successful. At book counters, bookstores everywhere, buyers of Steve's book received cards stamped with a certain date.

On these dates, Hillsacres was opened to the public. They came. They saw the rolling hills where Rusty, Steve's beautiful horse, had lived. They peered into the stables through specially designed doors where they could not frighten the horses; and —final triumph—they were admitted into the house.

Mrs. Delaney led these curious processions from door to door and allowed the visitors to peer at the Baridon treasures. Then they sat in the huge, low-ceilinged living-room or library, or on the wide veranda, and drank tea, munched cookies and talked with awe and pleasure of Steven's home.

This pleased the readers. Linda's idea had been a successful one, and by having visitors conducted around the farm only once a week, peace was maintained for the balance of the week. Another problem had been solved.

Linda then gave her attention once again to her own troubles. Before long, she knew Brenda would be returning to Chicago from Reno, and she would not hesitate to inquire of Steve how his affairs were progressing.

In fact, Linda could not help seeing the embossed envelopes which arrived weekly, addressed to Steve with purple ink in a graceful, flowing hand. With their coming, Linda's hopes grew dimmer and dimmer, and soon—with an air of gay abandon—she gave Greg permission to call as often as he liked, to take her riding in his car and even to escort her to the theater.

More often, they drove to the farm for luncheon, riding or just to escape from the heat and confusion of the city to the clean, cool country air.

The farm was beautiful in autumn colors. The countryside was rich with red and gold and copper-tinged leaves, a golden haze lay over the hills. The horses grazed peacefully in pasture and the house was rich with the odor of baking, of pickling spices and preserves.

During the next month, Linda drove out nearly every day, sometimes with Mary, Steve's sister, and her husband Philip, sometimes with Diane, but more likely with Greg. She had decided to ignore the gossip circulating through the social set, but in the face of Brenda's forthcoming divorce and the rumor that she was infatuated with Steve, Linda discovered her association with Greg was losing its value as teatable conversation. This, despite the fact that Greg kept postponing his return to Brazil week after week.

Greg rode like a veteran, and while his conversation was shallow in comparison with Steve's, his banalities amused Linda and helped her, temporarily at least, to forget that Hillsacres would soon be but a memory.

Linda's relations with Steve were dangerously near the breaking point. They had reached the stage where they avoided meeting each other for days at a time, taking their meals at different hours, and when—by accident—they chanced to meet in the apartment, they spoke only if it was necessary.

Linda knew that Steve had had trouble with his publisher in regard to making his story into a moving piceure. Steve was holding out for a better price than the moving picture company was willing to pay, and transactions were at a temporary standstill. This information came through Steve's father on one of his infrequent visits to the apartment.

Marshall Baridon seemed to sense that things were not all they seemed to be, although whenever he was present, Linda and Steve managed to achieve a certain degree of harmony between them. On these occasions, the older man's eyes rested in puzzled fashion on his son's grim features, but he remained silent.

Finding Linda alone in the apartment one afternoon, he ventured a query, but Linda was noncommittal. She waved one hand airily.

"Steve's just . . . just worried about his book. He's had to make so many trips, so many speeches recently that he's nearly exhausted."

They were seated in the cool, picturesque living-room before the tea-table. Linda, clad in demure white, her browned legs bare, her feet in ridiculous red scandals, looked unbelievably young and innocent, unlike the popular conception of an author's wife.

Watching her, Marshall Baridon felt a tug at his heartstrings. She seemed so frail, so dejected. The bright, happy look she always wore was faded now.

"Then—you're both happy? You haven't—well, quarreled?"

Linda tried desperately to look surprised. "But of course we're happy, father Baridon. Why shouldn't we be? Haven't we everything?"

Suddenly because she was so lonesome, so bewildered by the trend of events, Linda was sobbing in his arms, sobbing out a story of grief and frustration to his sympathetic ears.

"So you see," she murmured brokenly when there was nothing more to tell, "Steve is still in love with that—that woman. There's nothing more I can do, except to —to stand by and watch her break his heart again."

"Perhaps you'd rather I would say I'm surprised," the man said heavily, "but I can't do that. I've suspected something was wrong for several weeks now, and I couldn't put my finger on the trouble."

He sighed heavily. "I'm very fond of you, my dear. You're the kind of daughter-in-law I always wanted. I mean the real you, not the sophisticated person you're pretending to be. If Steve weren't so blind, he would see through this artificial front you're putting up. I've a good notion to talk some sense into that boy of mine."

"Please—you mustn't!" Linda was fraught with anxiety. "You promised, father."

Marshall Baridon patted the girl's trembling shoulder. "So I did, my dear, and you can depend on me to keep this little secret, but it will be hard. Hard."

Tears welled again in Linda's eyes. "It's all—so—so sordid and degrading. I thought I could be so modern and broad-minded about everything, but I can't. I was brought up to have the utmost respect for marriage, not to make a farce of it. I thought Prairievale was smug and narrow, but it wasn't after all. The people there aren't mistaken about a great many things, although I believed they were old-fashioned and stodgy.

"For instance, my parents are very happy together. They've been married for thirty years, and whenever things go wrong they face the music together. When I was at home and things were—well, difficult—they didn't quarrel and haggle and abuse each other. Mother didn't wash her hands of the whole business and walk out on Dad. Instead, they weathered the storms because it was the natural thing to do."

Linda's face was passive and wistful. "I wonder what my parents would think of Brenda, and the wilful way in which she has destroyed Jerry Coleman's love and trust in her just to satisfy a whim? And what will they think of me—their own daughter—when this new scandal hits the front pages of all the newspapers?"

"What do you think of yourself, my dear? That is the most important thing of all. Nothing anyone can say will hurt very much if you know in your heart that you are right."

"But I'm not right," she whispered. "I've never done right or I should never have married Steve as I did, to spite another man. I can see the headlines now, and the gossip columns smacking their chops over the story. There will be pictures and whispers and Steve's book sales will be doubled, because scandal mongers will try to find the same type of material in his book that will be dragged out of our private life together. I shudder to think what would happen if people knew how —how platonic our marriage really is. Sometimes I wake up in the night, wondering if anyone—suspects."

She caught the man's hand earnestly, her eyes filled with pain and misery. "Oh, I'm so ashamed of myself. I sometimes wonder if I will ever be able to live this down—to forget the past and look to the future."

"That," said Marshall Baridon quietly, "is for you to decide."

Linda was to find that time would pass. The hours slipped into days, the days lengthened into weeks and still she managed to keep her chin bravely tilted, to smile at knowing, questioning glances, to entertain guests and be amusing and interested, when all the time her dread of Brenda's sure return mounted, and her heart was dead.

The news was not long in coming. Linda was awakened one morning by the shrill ring of her telephone, and Mary's voice, in response to her query, said anxiously:

"Linda, have you seen the morning papers?"

"No, you wakened me. Is something—wrong?"

"I'm glad that I'm the first to tell you, because all the cats in town will be gossiping. Linda—Brenda is back in town minus a husband and swathed in furs. I'm afraid—" her voice dropped almost to a whisper. "—Linda, she has her eyes on Steve, and she's . . . dangerous."

Icy fear clutched Linda's heart. So Mary—Steve's sister, her own loyal friend, knew, too, that Brenda had returned to claim Steve.

Conversing over the telephone with Mary, Linda tried to keep her voice cool and indifferent, although her heart was pounding.

"Linda," Mary said gravely, "Phil and I would like to see you. May we come over?"

"I was planning on driving out to the farm," Linda said. "Why don't you two come along? There won't be many lovely days left. October is nearly with us."

"That's a marvelous idea. Perhaps we could have a picnic luncheon somewhere."

Linda fell in with the plan eagerly. It would be so good to forget all her problems for a while, Mary and her husband were cheerful company. She was gayer than she had been for days as they left Phil's car at the farmhouse and started out on horseback through the country.

Seated on a hilltop overlooking Hillsacres, Linda relaxed in the golden sunshine and munched the chicken sandwiches Mrs. Delaney had carefully prepared for the outing.

"Bless you, my children, for suggesting a picnic," she murmured. "It's the first one I've been on in months."

"We're simple people, Philip and I," Mary answered, leaning contentedly against her husband's broad shoulder. "By the way, my worthy spouse, don't you think it's time we let Linda in on our little secret?"

Philip smiled adoringly at his wife. "I thing it's a remarkably fine idea."

"Then prepare yourself, Linda," Mary's eyes were suddenly starry. "The Ross clan, meaning us, is going to initiate a new member next summer, meaning an addition to the family. Congratulations are now in order."

"Mary—Phil! Not really!" Linda said in surprise.

"But yes, darling. Isn't it wonderful?"

"Oh, you precious people!" Linda was nearly in tears. "I'm so happy for you both. I—I never dreamed—I mean—"

"You mean you're surprised," Mary laughed. "Linda, we're both overjoyed, but I am afraid it will spoil Dad's plans for winter horseshows. After today I'm giving up riding."

SELLING LACK TENDS TO KEEP MART STEADY

Slight Shade of Improvement Discovered In Several Departments.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—While the stock market remained more or less becalmed today there was a further slight shading toward improvement in prices in a few departments.

The modest demand was centered to some extent in rails and an assortment of industrials. Many issues were neglected.

Given some support were Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central and Bethlehem Steel.

In the market's favor was an absence of selling activity of any consequence. This was a negative factor at best but it seemed to promote a modest amount of selective demand. Many speculative contingents held aloof pending more decisive developments in the vital fighting areas in the Pacific.

Reminders that additional serious industrial dislocations must be expected as the war economy movement proceeds were noted in announcement of plans for a sharp curtailment in production of typewriters. This industry, which turned out more than 1,000,000 machines in 1941, soon will be required to convert a large part of its facilities to armaments output.

Students of business trends scanned the report of Edison Electric Institute which disclosed a contra-seasonal rise in power use in the week ended Jan. 31.

18 FIRMS IN MANSFIELD JOIN DEFENSE BOND DEDUCTION PLAN

Eighteen Mansfield industrial and business establishments have adopted the payroll deduction plan for employes to purchase defense savings bonds and stamps, Paul M. Eliot, Richland county chairman of the defense bond organization, announced today.

First of the companies to reach the goal of 100 per cent participation was the Art Rattan works. Eliot predicted that a similar record would be established by many other firms. They are:

Westinghouse, Ohio Brass, Empire Steel, Farmers Saving and Trust company, Lumbermens, Farm Tools, Inc., Page Dairy, Hanley Milling, Gorman-Rupp company, Hoff Manufacturing, Superior Brass, Ohio Textile products, Envo Engineering, Mansfield Brass, Axtell Dairy, the Mansfield-Leland, and Morgan Cleaners.

Eliot announced that an industrial committee has been organized with H. W. Arlin as chairman, and that it would meet at 4 p. m. today to work out a program of working with a payroll deduction committee on this phase of the bond sales. Other members are Verne Kyle, James Hoffman, A. L. Allen, J. C. Gorman, Glen Bierly, L. W. Hartman, Elmer Hedeen, J. E. Floyd, Joy Herbert, George W. Stephens, B. W. Clark, G. L. Draffan, Ben Shaffer, J. M. Hill, and Allan Tappan.

A financial committee headed by R. S. Gibson is attempting to secure contributions totalling $150 to cover incidental expense, such as postage and supplies. The office used by the bond sales committee has been donated and all work is voluntary. W. H. G. Kegg is assistant chairman and Mrs. Dale Friday is volunteer secretary at the office.

A plan is being worked out, Eliot reported, whereby students in the city's schools will handle sale of stamps. First group to start this was the ninth grade at Johnny Appleseed, which purchased stamps with its class fund, and will purchase additional stamps as the first supply is sold. This may be worked out with the Parent-Teachers council.

The Junior Association of Commerce has been requested to handle a program of establishing booths for stamp sales in various retail stores. A wholesalers and jobbers committee, headed by Avery Hand, will handle solicitation of wholesalers and distribution of posters and descriptive material through the county. Other members are George Stelis, Frank Bissman, R. O. Davies, E. R. Hartman, P. E. Sturges, and David E. Davies.

Eliot also announced that John H. Warden has been appointed chairman of the bond sales in Shelby, in place of Walter Van Horn.

MOST INNOCENT QUERIES CAN BE JAP PROPAGANDA

If You Ever Get Answer To 'Where's U. S. Fleet,' They'll Be Happy.

To scorn these propaganda ideas is to risk a mental Pearl Harbor, for sometimes one of these propaganda hits sweeps the articulate world.

The threatened invasion of Australia may be a sample. Tokyo's short wave began saying that Australia was isolated, that she should put all her fighting forces in position for a Japanese invasion. Along with the military situation in the South Pacific this was dynamic.

The talks in the house of commons, the Australian official statements, the discussion of American assistance, all may have a different origin. The fact remains that they parallel the Japanese propaganda of the moment.

It might be considered unusual for Tokyo to broadcast important military information of this sort.

That particular angle of suspicion about reports of what is usually secret is one Japan is playing to counter-act President Roosevelt's announcement of our forthcoming huge air armada. If true, says Tokyo, he has given vital information to Germany and Japan. Therefore, again says Tokyo, consider the figures a bluff.

The interviews, real or not, with American prisoners are good propaganda from the Japanese viewpoint. So are the Japanese claims of captured officers who are purported to mention inadequate American preparations in the Pacific.

Prisoner officials, missionaries and bishops are quoted as wishing to cooperate with Japanese forces.

The four freedoms are ridiculed. One phrase with a nostalgic allusion is that if Americans are fighting for freedom why don't we battle the Soviets. Another—if our press is free, why isn't it permited to report the sinking of the aircraft carrier Lexington. U. S. officials have said that the aircraft carrier sinking reports are Japanese attempts to get information.

Some of our recent isolationists become, in the Tokyo propaganda, a rapidly vanishing group of American patriots whose words fell on deaf ears.

The billions we now are appropriating are declared to be merely to fill the void left by our wasting previous astronomical sums.

Tokyo speaks all languages. It tells the Chinese they shall share the riches formerly enjoyed by the Europeans. But the word to the Filipinos is that they shall be allowed to take over the business formerly owned by Chinese; to the Chinese merchants in the Dutch Indies, that if they cooperate with the Dutch the Japanese will destroy all their property and the sacred burial places of their ancestors.

The Dutch are asked not to destroy their oil but to play safe by recognizing the Japanese control already declared to be a fact in the western Pacific. The other Indies inhabitants are admonished not to destroy the oil which lights their homes and brings them food.

Latin America is a continual target. These Americans are asked to ponder whether the North Americans still think the navy can protect the United States. The United States was pictured as trying desperately to get help from the Rio conference. North Americans were said to be hysterical; American women were even about to wear cotton stockings and go shoeless. America's well known shortages were enumerated—and chewing gum was added!

South Americans are told Japan has absolutely no territorial ambitions. But South America is said to be in no position to protect itself from Axis powers and is warned not to break diplomatic relations.

The propaganda runs on endlessly. So be careful what you say and what questions you ask.
